Canada Is Booming.

BUSINESS in Canada is booming, new high records indicated in many directions. That is good news for this country. Prosperous neighbors are the best.

Canadians know how to do some things that, like the serpent on the rock, are too much for us.

IN Canada, government can and does own and run railroads, successfully. They do not admit, as we do, that our public men lack intelligence and honesty, needed for public ownership.

IN Canada they consider the users of hydro-electric power first, even the small farmers, and the power companies come second.

Here our power companies come first, and the consuming public nowhere. The consumer to the big company is what the young Frenchman was to Napoleon, simply useful material.

It is some comfort, not much, to realize that the law of eminent domain can always adjust that—in case the people ever learn to vote.

PORCUPINE CAMP, in Canada, is "delivering gold at the rate of $50 a minute." That seems like a great deal of money, but it is not such a great deal, in these days.

$50 a minute, 8 hours a day, 300 days a year is only $7,200,000 yearly.

We have citizens to whom that would seem a pitifully small income.

THE late Judge Gary, before this country got into the war, said of one prosperous American: "I know he has at least twelve million dollars a month income, because I have borrowed that much from him, for the steel company. I think his actual income is nearer twenty millions a month."

"ONLY" $12,000,000 a month would be $144,000,000 a year, five per cent on nearly three billions.

You cannot judge by income tax returns, because the great fortunes are held in corporations, and care is taken not to let the money out in taxable dividends—entirely in accordance with law.

WE do not appreciate how prosperous this country is, or what good reasons big men have for wanting to keep the little fellows employed, well paid and contented. The crowd contented, is the big man's insurance against trouble.

IT'S possible to be too popular, as little babies, kissed almost to death, can testify.

The Prince of Wales also knows it. British fox hunt and steeple chase authorities have decided to keep away crowds of hysterical women that rush to see the prince, when he rides, shrieking encouragement at him and his horses, frightening the latter so that mistakes in jumping and dangerous falls result.

THE young prince, good-natured even with mob foolishness, has read "The Bacchae," and probably thanks Heaven that he is a modern popular prince, not ancient Dionysius.

Young writers of advertising copy should also read Euripides. It would help them to escape the curse of modern advertising—newspaper English.

A TEXAS grand jury will investigate charges that murder rings are formed to collect rewards from bankers.

The Texas bankers offered $5,000 each for bank burglars, dead. Ingenious gentlemen have been causing individuals, not really bank burglars, to pose as such, then killing them and collecting rewards.

BANKS must be protected, but have bankers a right to establish laws of their own, unlike state laws? And what about inciting to murder, when you offer a reward for a corpse. The penalty for attempted bank burglary is not instant death, but the bankers' reward offer makes that the law.

Suppose merchants offered $5,000 dead or alive, for any banker guilty of charging usurious interest. That would be technically as lawful as the bankers' generous offer for burglar corpses.

THROUGH the Congregation of the Holy Office, the Pope condemns the "Association of the Friends of Israel," and forbids all Catholics to write or print books in its support. That association was founded "for the purpose of converting Jews to the Catholic faith." The Pope objects to its methods, although it has been supported by many cardinals, bishops and hundreds of ecclesiastics.

JEWS, as well as Catholics, will approve this action by the Roman Catholic authorities. Far away are the days when Jews had to choose between forcible conversion and banishment, or even death.

Six hundred in one day were burned alive in Germany because they would not renounce their own faith.

HOLLAND, Belgium and other countries are injured financially by American restrictions on importation of bulbs, flowers and plants. Americans regret the necessity of keeping out bulbs hard to get here.

SCIENCE might find some way to make bulb importation safe, by use of gas, or brief application of heat sufficiently intense to kill "Changes Address"

MARTHA JULIA FISHER

Mrs. Dorothy B. Peterson, 1419 Mervin avenue, Dormont, missed $150 worth of wearing apparel, she says, at the same time that Miss Martha Julia Fisher, a maid in her home, decided to "change her address." Mrs. Peterson enlisted the aid of Albert Reuhling, chief, and Fred Wilson, captain, Dormont police, and the girl was arrested in an Oakland rooming house and the clothing recovered. Miss Fisher also is charged with forging Mrs. Peterson's name to three checks aggregating $55. She will get a hearing tonight before Justice of the Peace Martin Weitzel, Dormont, on charges of forgery and larceny.

Corbett, Here, Backs Gene as Highbrow

By HAVEY J. BOYLE.

James J. Corbett, who developed from a bank clerk into a man who defeated the celebrated John L. Sullivan for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world, came to town today to fill a theatrical engagement.

Mr. Corbett, now in his early sixties, looks not more than 50. An erect carriage adds to his youthful appearance. His appearance generally is that of a business man, from the somber hue of his suit, shirt and necktie, to the tortoise shell glasses, which, somehow, make it difficult to believe that once upon a time he subdued the terrible John L.

Corbett completely destroys the conventional portrait of what an ex-pug should look like. His nose is straight, his ears perfect, contradicting the impression that fighters must have broken noses and cauliflower ears, and his vocabulary would fit nicely into any drawing room in Sewickley.

As one who mingled on accasion at Tim Sullivan's annual outing for the Bowery boys of the nineties

Operators Are Overruled in Attempt to Stop Costs Investigation.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Southern West Virginia coal operators were overruled today by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee on one of the contentions by which they sought to escape being compelled to reveal their production costs.

At the resumption of the inquiry into conditions in the coal industry, after a 10-day recess former United States Senator A. O. Stanley, of Kentucky, as counsel for the operators, argued that the Senate lacked Constitutional authority to

This was established this morning when Gov. Fisher received the reply of Senator James E. In his letter he specified five points on which he demanded the committee

CLASH IN KLAN SUIT

The national officers of the Ku Klux Klan "banished" the William Penn Klan and "revoked" its charter with great reluctance, John H. Connoughton, attorney for the national organization, sought to show at the beginning of the afternoon session of Judge W. H. S. Thomson's division of the United States District Court today.

After the luncheon recess Attorney Connoughton placed on the stand Dr. C. F. Oyer, one of the five "banished" members of the Pennsylvania Klan whom the organization seeks to restrain from interfering with its operations.

"Did you not get an extension of time on the payment of the per capita tax?" Attorney Connoughton asked.

"No," Dr. Oyer replied. "Sometime in the spring of last year I received a letter that the tax was past due."

The Klan is seeking to prove to Judge Thomson's satisfaction that the "banishments" and "revocations" of charters were legal under the constitution and bylaws of the organization. The five defendants claim the executive orders were illegal.

ATTORNEYS CLASH

How much money the William Penn Klan had in the bank when it "severed" connections with the state organization caused one of the most serious tiffs between counsel.

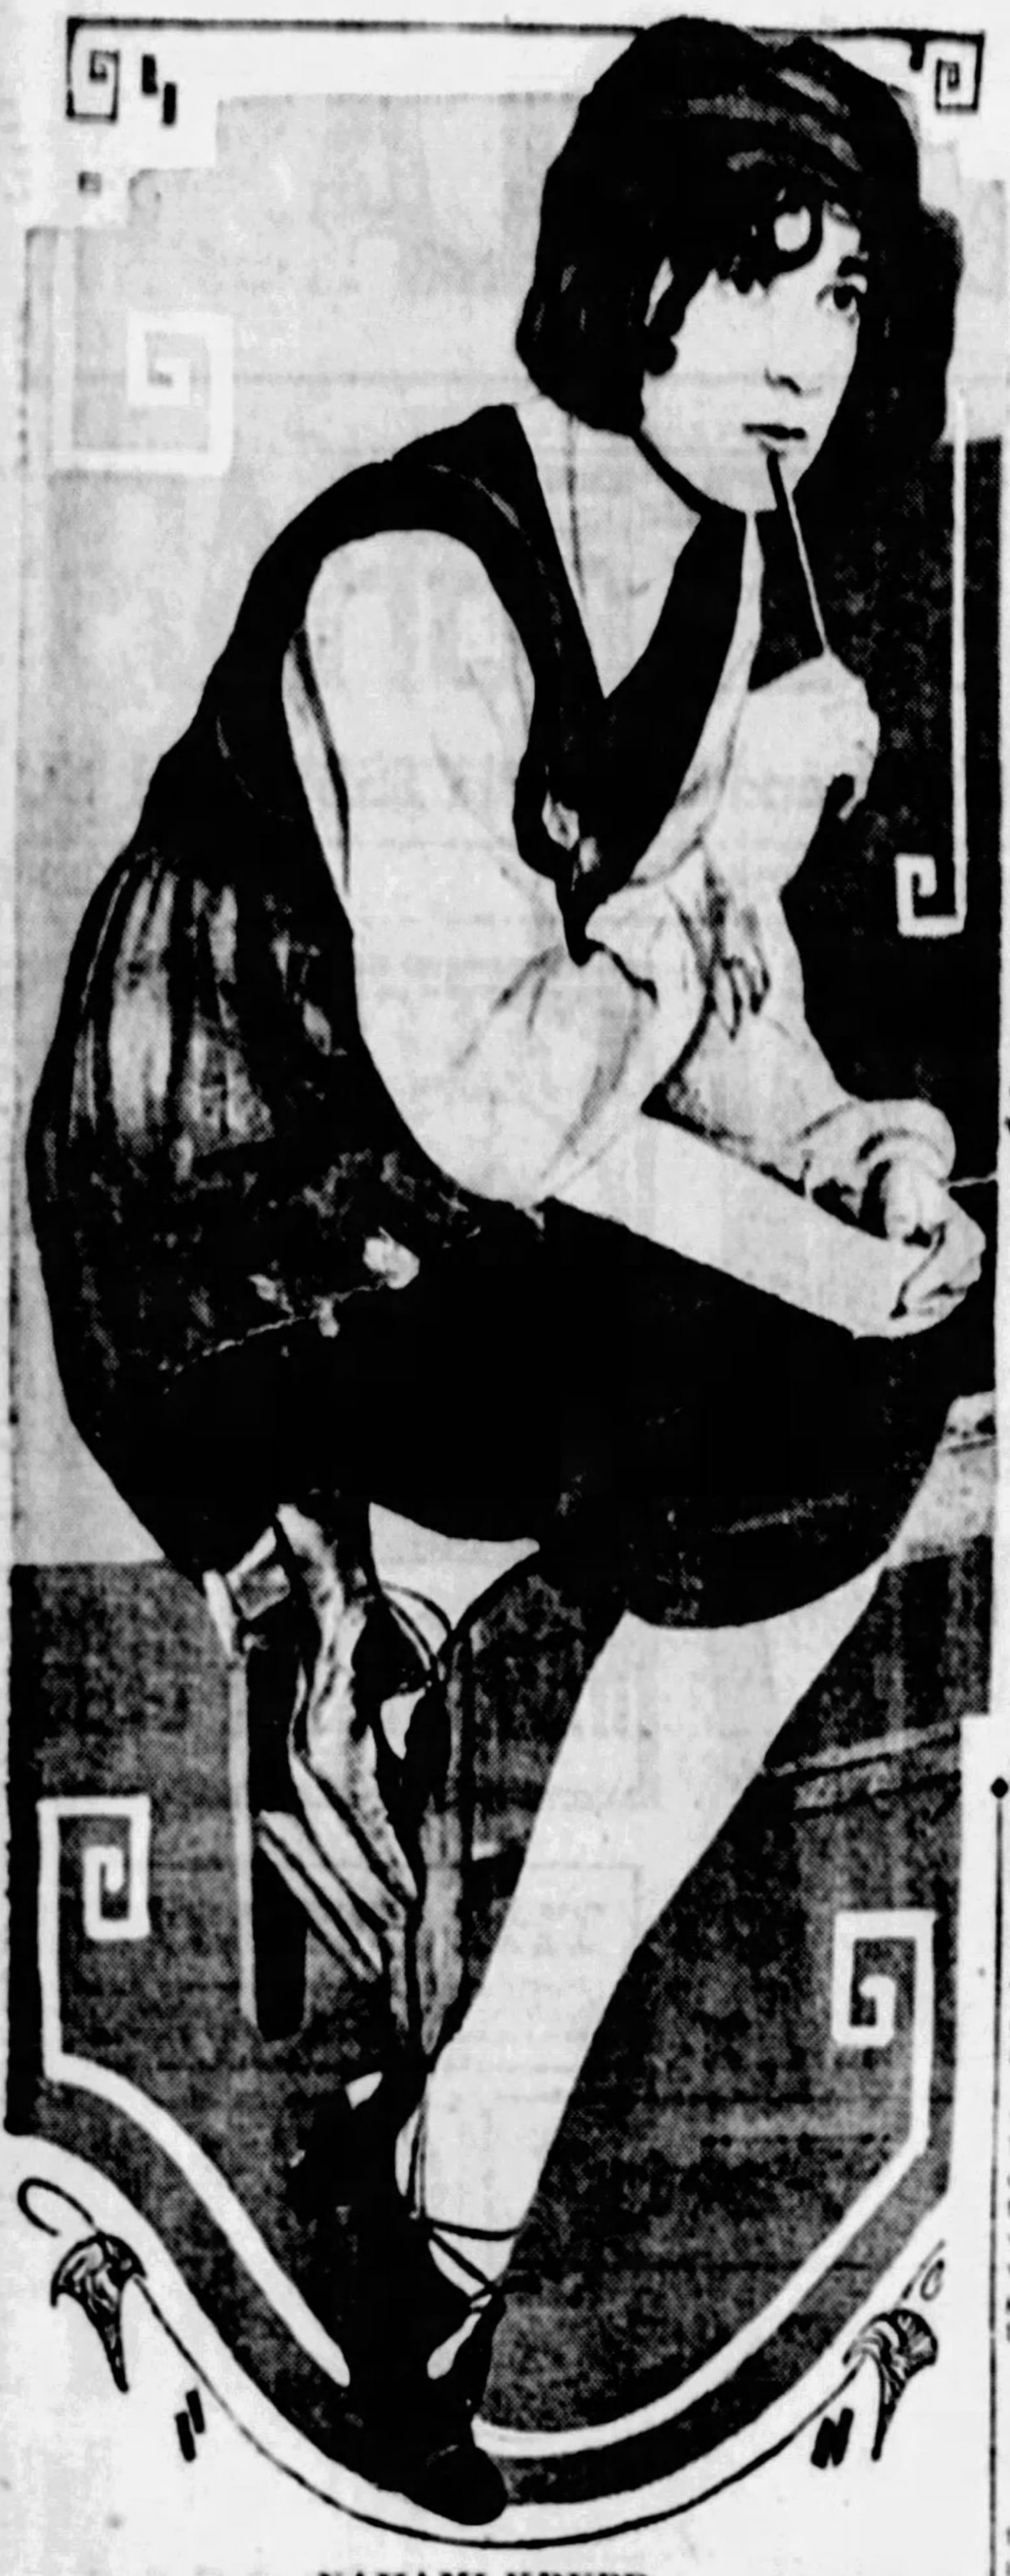
U. S. OPENS TRIAL TO PIN CRIMINAL CONSPIRACY ON SINCLAIR

RAJAH VAINLY WOOS -:- Recalled by Nancy Miller's Betrothal -:- CHICAGO POETESS



NAHAMI KRUPP

Nahami Krupp, Chicago poetess, who rejected the suit of Prince Sarath Ghosh, master of vast Hindu estates. Her romance is recalled by the wedding of Nancy Miller, and she says she can understand Nancy's choice.

"How strange this city should lie passionless
And still, when all the while your lightning eyes
Flash forth through the moist air, and all the whil
Your burning image danced within my blood;
And every leap that motioned in the passing of the the breeze
Hissed into my ears the whisper of your name!"

POEMS THAT WON PRINCE

Nahami wrote many poems for the prince, and he, madly in love with her, pictured a life of luxury in India; with precious gems and riches, if she would wed him.

DIES OF BROKEN HEART

Prince Sarath Ghosh (top) died of a broken heart when he failed to be as fortunate in love as the ex-maharajah who wed Nancy Miller (bottom photo).

"He is unlike all other dead,
And tears are trite—let blood for tears be shed!
Drain the rivers for his drowned head,
Gather the burnt-out embers of the moon,
And scatter them for petals round his bed."

LAST TRIBUTE

This poem was written by Nahami as a tribute to the prince after his death in New York. Broken-hearted over his lost suit, he breathed his last with Nahami's name on his lips.

SEES NANCY HAPPY

Nahami Krupp, who spurned a prince because she was "too young to know love," predicts a happy wedded life for Nancy Miller. She believes the former maharajah of Indore will be an ideal husband for the American girl.

SINCLAIR PUT ON TRIAL AGAIN

International News Service

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The Federal government launched its supreme effort today to bring Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil man and sportsman, to task for his participation in the so-called oil scandals of the Harding administration.

Shortly after 10 o'clock this morning, Sinclair went on trial for criminal conspiracy to defraud the nation of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve in the court of District Supreme Court Justice Jennings Bailey.

The first 26 of the 550 men and women available for jury duty were on hand in the tiny courtroom for questioning. George Hoover, of defense counsel, immediately challenged the court's practice of personally questioning the veniremen to the exclusion of the opposing attorneys, claiming it contrary to all existing law and unfair to his famous client.

SINCLAIR CALM

Sinclair listened to the argument in a nonchalant manner, surrounded by his "million-dollar" array of counsel. His co-defendant, former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall, who leased him the disputed oil land in exchange for what the government contends was a $230,500 bribe, was missing today—too ill in New Mexico to attempt the journey to Washington.

Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, the government's special oil prosecutors, upheld the court's practice of personally interrogating the prospective jurors. It helped in speeding up the trial, Roberts contended.

Justice Bailey had the box filled and asked the jurors questions collectively.

Two women were in the box for the preliminary questioning—Miss Margaret Haltiga, a 26-year-old girl in an abbreviated blue dress with hat to match, and Mrs. Alma C. Dehart, 31, a housewife.

Forty-eight men and women had passed through the box at noon recess of court without a jury having been selected.

CONNELLSVILLE GRANTS $28,000 HOME PERMITS

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., April 9.—The Planning Commission has granted permits for the construction of $28,000 new homes here. At its previous session building permits totaling $40,000 were issued.

OPERATORS OVERRULED

compel witnesses to testify in such an investigation.

After he had debated the matter nearly two hours, he was informed by Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, chairman of the committee, that the committee would not agree with him, and that if the operators wanted to stop the inquiry on that ground they would have to take their contention into court.

Cite Precedent

Watson said that even though the Constitution did not expressly authorize the Senate to compel witnesses to answer questions, the Supreme Court's decision in the case of former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty upheld its authority to do so.

The operators were told, however, that the committee would be glad to listen to arguments that their production costs were not pertinent to the subject under inquiry, or arguments that the committee was exceeding its authority because coal mining was not interstate commerce.

A number of Pittsburghers, including Don Rose, counsel, and Carl E. Lesher, executive vice president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, and Philip Murray, international vice president of the United Mine Workers, attended the hearing.

Besides ex-Senator Stanley, A. M. Belcher, of Charleston, W. Va., and E. L. Greever, of Tazewell, Va., appeared as counsel for the operators. The United Mine Workers were represented by Henry Warrum, of Indianapolis; Thomas C. Townsend, of Charleston, and Earl E. Houck, whose offices are in Indianapolis, but who has been in the union's Pittsburgh office for some months.

Senators Watson, chairman; Guy D. Goff, of West Virginia; Frank R. Gooding, of Idaho, and W. B. Pine, of Oklahoma, were the only members of the committee present when the session was called to order.

Former Senator Stanley delivered the first argument.

Hold Books "Private"

Stanley argued that the committee should not require the operators to expose their books because they were not charged with any crime, because they were not public officials and because there was no allegation that they had formed a combination in restraint of trade.

"There has been no serious labor trouble in part of this region," said Stanley, "for a hundred years. The severest competition exists, and coal is produced at the lowest possible cost consistent with any profit at all."

After this preamble, ex-Senator Stanley launched into his main argument, which was that the Constitution conferred no authority on Congress to compel witnesses to answer questions such as are involved in the present matter.

Denies Authority

"There is a general impression," he said, "that Congress has a common law right by analogy with the House of Commons. But a little reflection will show that the fact that the English Parliament has the broadest power to punish for contempt is not pertinent."

While Stanley was speaking, Senators Key Pittman, of Nevada, Hugo L. Black, of Alabama, and Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, came in and took seats at the committee table. Pittman and Black have not attended previous sessions.

Senator Watson asked Stanley if he thought the Senate had the right to pass the resolution calling for the inquiry into the coal industry. Stanley said he conceded the right to make an inquiry in a general way, but not to compel private citizens to answer questions about their private affairs.

Sennor Wheeler argued the matter with Stanley.

Wheeler presented various hypothetical situations to Stanley—as, for example, the necessity of getting facts as a basis for an amendment to the Constitution—and inquired if the Senate might not, under such circumstances, compel the answering of questions by witnesses on matters pertinent to the issue.

Stanley denied that Congress had the right to inquire into the citizens' private affairs.

"There is no limit," he said, "to which your inquisitorial powers cannot go if you leap over the Constitution at one bound; you would not be amending the Constitution in the case which you suppose, you would be abolishing it."

Senator Wheeler answered that he did not agree.

Wheeler wanted to know in what respect the principle department investigation differed from that in the case of Harry M. Daugherty, formerly attorney general.

"The cases are not analogous," answered Stanley, "because Daugherty was charged with malfeasance in office, while no charge has been made in the present case."

Senator Goff interjected remarks which created the impression that he was inclined to agree with the contention of the coal operators' counsel.

"Extortion!"

Stanley declared that unless witnesses were serving in some public capacity or were to be quizzed on the public business, they were "immune from the inquisitorial powers of Congress," regardless of whether the information that it was desired to obtain from them was to be used as a basis for legislation or for any other purpose.

"Congress," asserted Stanley, "has no power to 'extort' trade secrets from the citizens for any reason."

Senator Wheeler remarked that in that case the Senate had exceeded its authority in questioning all of the witnesses who have thus far been quizzed in the coal inquiry.

Stanley suggested that the Senate had shown a tendency to extend its powers when sitting as a court of impeachment to affairs in which its function was not judicial but only legislative.

Wheeler vs. Goff

Stanley read various decisions of the United States Supreme Court which he contended upheld his position. The lawyers on the committee listened closely and frequently interposed questions and comments.

Senators Wheeler and Goff got into a colloquy. Wheeler maintained that the Constitution does not go so far as to give immunity to a witness from the requirement that he answer the Senate's questions, if his testimony is pertinent to the subject under inquiry.

"Then," said Goff, "you think we have the right to compel a witness to testify against himself?"

Cite Legal Decision

Wheeler responded that a witness could not be compelled to answer if his answer would incriminate him, but there was no claim that the coal operators would incriminate themselves by disclosing their production costs.

Wheeler asserted that the question involved in the present matter was exactly the same as in the Daugherty case, and that the Supreme Court's decision in the latter, which is its latest word on the subject, upheld the Senate's authority to compel answers to questions and punish witnesses for contumacy.

Stanley maintained that Congress had the right to make investigations such as the Federal Trade Commission might make, but could go no further.

Overruled

"You will have to go into court on that," remarked Senator Watson. "You will find a rather unsympathetic committee on your contention. Even though there is no express provision in the constitution authorizing us to make these investigations, we all do believe that the power inheres in a legislative body to inquire concerning matters in which legislation may be sought by Congress. We feel we have a constitutional right to investigate everything pertinent to this inquiry. The Daugherty decision was contrary to my old-fashioned notions concerning constitutional law, but we are bound by it."

Watson told Stanley that it would be futile for him to take up any more of the committee's time with the argument that its inquiry was unconstitutional—but that the committee would be glad, however, to hear anything he might have to say on the question as to whether coal mining was interstate commerce, and also on the question if the answers to the queries to which the coal operators objected were pertinent to the Senate's inquiry, especially that phase of it which has to do with the question if the railroads have endeavored to depress the cost of coal produced by union miners.

Stanley answered that since the southwest Virginia fields employed only non-union miners, the committee had no right to question the operators from that region, since their answers would have no bearing on the matters that the committee is called upon to investigate by the Senate resolution.

At this point the committee adjourned for luncheon.

CLASH IN SUIT

"Kligrapp" as secretary of the William Penn Klan, followed Dr. Oyer to the stand, Attorney Connoughton asked him the question:

"Can you tell approximately how much money was in your treasury when you 'severed' connection with the state organization?"

Attorney Barrickman jumped to his feet with an objection.

"WWe have never severed our connection. We are members in good standing of the national Ku Klux Klan," Barrickman said.

Judge Thomson did not sustain the objection.

"It was approximately zero," Rickman declared amid laughter throughout the courtroom.

Sam McDonald, the next witness, was belligerent.

"Why are you so sensitive?" Attorney Barrikman asked when McDonald had shaken his fist and yelled two or three answers when the attorney sought to find out if McDonald had not held certain records of the state organization.

"I'll tell you why," McDonald shouted. "I'm sensitive because you, Van Barrickman, have shot a lot of 'bull' to the Pittsburgh newspapers."

The first applause heard during the trial of the suit swept through the courtroom.

"If that occurs again," Judge Thomson said, "we'll have to clear the courtroom."

which the organization seeks to restrain from interfering with its operations, is chief counsel for the defense. His co-defendants are the Rev. John F. Strayer, deposed head of Latrobe Klan; Charles S. Hunter, Unity Klan; Dr. Charles F. Oyer, the William Penn Klan, and William C. Davis, Manor Klan.

Grand Dragon Shaw left the stand at noon after half an hour of direct examination and an hour of cross-examination.

Dr. Strayer was the next witness.

The Klan sought from the opening of the case this morning to prove the defendants have no standing in court by forcing defense counsel to admit that the "banishment" orders were legal under the constitution of the order.

The defendants sought just to force admission from witnesses that none of them were expelled legally.

NOT NOTIFIED

Under cross-examination Dr. Shaw admitted that the William Penn Klan was not notified before he appeared before them on the night of April 19, 1927, that their charter was to be revoked.

This admission was a decided victory for the defense.

Dr. Shaw said that he revoked the charter from the platform through verbal authority of Imperial Wizard Evans. The defense claims that the method of revocation and banishment is provided for in the constitution, which was violated in the alleged "revocation."

Dr. Strayer, former member of the State Legislature, was questioned at length concerning meetings of the Latrobe Klan preceding the controversy with the state and national officers.

He was an unwilling witness for the plaintiff. Most of his answers were "I don't know. I don't remember."

C. H. Lewis, "kligroph," or secretary, of the Latrobe Klan, the next witness, testified that the "$20 or $25" in the Klan's treasury is now in a Latrobe bank. The "50 or 100" robes, paraphernalia and rituals, he said, are stored in Odd Fellows hall there.

PACK COURTROOM

Hundreds of persons crowded into the Federal Building today as the two elements of the Klan began the legal battle upon which its existence in Pennsylvania may depend.

A surprising number of women were in the audience that filled Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson's courtroom, where the Klan hopes to recover $100,000 from five banished members—and where those members, in a counter suit, seek to have the Klan in this state declared in receivership.

Dr. Herbert C. Shaw, former Erie, Pa., Methodist minister, now grand dragon of the realm of Pennsylvania, who issued the official "banishment" orders, was the second witness to take the stand before Judge Thomson.

and as one who did a naughty two-step with a tough dame at the bricklayers' annual ball, Mr. Corbett is one who sees the present-day boys and girls stepping a pace just a little too frantic for their own good.

"They tell me," said Gentleman Jim, a sobriquet he won early for good manners when fistic champions were supposed to do little but drink red "licker" and squirt tobacco juice out of the corner of the mouth, "that some of your young men positively will not dance with the old-fashioned girls who wear corsets. On my word, I heard a girl tell her mother that, I don't advocate corsets, necessarily, but honestly, I don't like to hear about the boycott, so to speak."

Corbett said there is a lesson for everyone in the success of the present champion, Gene Tunney. He was not a boxer and not an athlete. He learned boxing by constant practice. He was smart enough to perfect a straight left-hand, something that no champion before him has had.

"While I see much fun poked at Tunney over the high-brow company he keeps and over the books he reads, I cannot help but believe that these stories are far better for boxing than to hear that he had been arrested for reckless ways of conducting himself.

"He may never be popular with the masses, but he is doing something for boxing. He is showing you he can be a good fighter and still not necessarily a tough."

Mr. Corbett, by the way, is going to sell want ads at the downtown office of The Sun-Telegraph next Friday at noon.

TROOPERS BREAK LINE

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 9.—Mrs. Ethel Garffic, 47, of Meadowlands, first woman picket to be arrested in Pennsylvania's prolonged mine strike, went to jail this morning to begin serving a 30-day sentence in default of a $10 fine. She was arrested by state police early today at the Rich Hill mine of the McClane Mining Company. She was charged with molesting a nonunion miner on his way to work and pleaded guilty to a disorderly conduct charge before Alderman I. E. Goodridge of Washington.

Women are not sanctioned as pickets by the United Mine Workers of America, but a militant movement among the women sponsored by the "Save the Union" committee has been welcomed by a small group of women in this district.

The women made their first appearance on the picket line at Meadowlands this morning. There were about 15 women in addition to the regular men pickets. The troopers declare they paid no attention to the women until they began acting disorderly.

20 WOMEN CHASED

About 20 women pickets were routed this morning at Library when state police charge they became abusive in their open accusations against strike breakers at Montour Mine No. 10 of the Pittsburgh Coal Company. No arrests were made.

The women in this district are under leadership of Mrs. Christine Dolence, militant follower of the "Save the Union" movement. Mrs. Dolence made a heated address at the recent national conference of the insurgent miners in Pittsburgh, asking that body to approve women on the picket line.

LOSS ON HOME HERE DENIED

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The government today won a partial victory in its effort to prevent executors of the estate of the late Senator Philander Knox from deducting loss upon the former Knox home in Pittsburgh in computing income tax.

The residence was built in 1886 at a cost of $172,000, leased by Knox in 1901 and sold in 1920 for $72,000. The high court held that any loss between 1901 and 1920 was subject to deduction. The case was sent back to lower courts for a new decision upon this basis. The estate claimed the full deduction of the loss between 1886 and 1920.

GYPSIES HELD IN SWINDLE

SLEUTHS HALT $1,000 "EXCHANGE"

Three gypsies had ten, nice yellow-backed coupons, detectives allege, which they wanted to trade Ray Hoffman, lower Penn avenue garage proprietor, for ten $100 bills, genuine U. S. currency, when the sleuths intervened. The gypsies, above, left to right, are Lilly Miller, 22; her brother-in-law, Walter Miller, 22, and the latter's wife, Lizzie, 21. BAR, shape and plate steel prices were raised in February. Last week, steel pipe prices went up 5 per cent.

Raising prices is one way to keep up income, when business is dull. But is it the best way?

ASK General Motors, Ford and other big automobile makers. Their plan is to reduce prices and improve quality, thus increasing output and cutting overhead. And they prosper.

PROSPERITY, full employment depend on increasing consumption. If other producers followed the example of the great motor concerns, American prosperity could be increased 500 per cent and unemployment eliminated.

TWO NEW CASTLE MINERS HELD IN FIRE KILLING 2

NEW CASTLE, Pa., April 9.—George Mayberry and James Hilton, miners on the I. E. Newton farm, were taken into custody today in the investigation of the bunkhouse fire, in which Charles Johns and son, George Johns, miners, were burned to death. The four men slept in the same compartment on the farm bunkhouse.

THINK GIRL SLAYER CAUGHT

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 9.—The brutal murder of Thelma Young, 17, during the Christmas holidays, officials believe, will be solved soon. Today the murder of Isarel Slotsky, 27, killed January 19, as he left the home of Miss Margaret Ohs, was solved, when Wray Wormsley, Negro, confessed, and at an inquest by Coroner William B. Baker was held for court trial.

Both Miss Young and Slotsky were killed while a Negro was staging a series of robberies, and Wormsley has confessed to eight robberies staged at that time.

The Young girl was slain as she crossed a field on a short cut to her home. Slotsky was killed as he left the home of Miss Ohs.

Wormsley, arrested a week ago, had been grilled by county detectives and finally confessed to eight robberies at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Z. G. Wonsettler, of Canton township. Today it was learned that he had also confessed to the Slotsky murder.

District Attorney Warren, S. Burchinal today said that he was confident that the Young murder will be solved. He said that Wormsley has admitted prowling about the city, peering into homes and entering them when he found the families absent. All these crimes were committed about the time Miss Young was killed and he believes Wormsley is concealing something.

Both the Slotsky and Young murders have baffled detectives. Ora Slater, a detective of Cincinnati, was brought here to unravel the cases and failed.

declare its policy before he agreed to appear to testify.

These five points were:

1. Upon what points the committee desires information.
2. Whether governors of other bituminous-producing states will be asked to appear.
3. Whether the committee proposes to discuss wages, freight rates and regulation of production.
4. Whether the Governor will have the same right to quiz the committee as the committee would exercise in quizzing the Governor.
5. Whether the committee "assumes the position that the governor of a state is answerable to it, and through it to the United States Senate for the exercise of his official duties and prerogatives."

CONSENT TO QUESTIONS

In reply to the fourth question the Governor was told he may ask questions of the committee.

Although Senator Watson requested the Governor to appear before the committee "at as early a date as the business of the state will justify your absence from the seat of government," and promises the Governor will be "treated with all courtesy," it is doubtful whether the Governor will go to Washington to appear before the committee. If he goes, it will not be very soon, at least.

The Governor has planned the itinerary of his spring tour of inspections of state-owned institutions. This tour is scheduled to start next Monday, and the itinerary cannot be changed now, according to those who outlined the schedule. The Governor plans to go ahead with his tour as "necessary state business" regardless of the committee's request for an early appearance, it is understood.

It is probable the Governor may agree to furnish any data which the committee desires, but may not ruption, inciting to mob violence—all masked under the fiery cross and the hoods and robes of the klan.

STEPHENSON DEPOSITION REVEALS MURDER PLOT

And today Stephenson's deposition tells of actual discussion of plans for murder, plans which were actually carried out when Capt. William S. Coburn, one of the original organizers under Col. Simmons was assassinated in Atlanta.

Stephenson's deposition was taken in the Indiana State Penitentiary in Michigan City, Ind., for use in a suit in Pittsburgh, brought by five rebellious members of the klan in Pennsylvania to prevent the hooded terrorists from transacting any business whatsoever in that state.

Yesterday Stephenson told of the formation of the klan, its early history and made the statement that the day Col. Simmons was removed as head of the organization was the beginning of the end of the order.

Q. You have stated that that was the natal day of the destruction of the Ku Klux Klan. Do you mean by that that it has since departed from its original purpose?

A. That is exactly what I mean.

Q. In what way?

Woman in Plot.

A. Principally in this: That the Ku Klux Klan was conceived by Col. Simmons; it was an organization dedicated to high spiritual philosophy to inculcate the principles of militant patriotism. By militant patriotism I mean that it was the original idea of Col. Simmons to so inspire each member with devotion for his country that he would be constantly alert to detect and uncover the activity of any individual or group who were engaged in things designed to undermine American ideals of government. While the membership throughout the country was generally imbued with those high ideals, at the time Col. Simmons was at the head of the klan, soon after he was removed there started a system of petty intrigue throughout the country without regard to the cost in individual sacrifice or without thought of preserving the honor of men. Some of the more conspicuous of these machinations were those surrounding efforts to eliminate or disgrace or destroy all men who protested the fine Machiavellian method of eliminating Col. Simmons. In destroying those men resort was had to a woman of loose morals.

Clark First Victim.

The first victim was Edward Young Clark, a great friend of Col. Simmons. There was obtained the service of a woman whose name I do not recall but you will be able to obtain her name from the court records in the Federal Court for the district in which Houston, Tex., is situated.

"This woman made affidavits that she had ridden on a train from one state to another in company with Mr. Clark and as a result of the affidavits, Mr. Clark was indicted for violation of the Mann act, commonly called the White Slave act. Mr. Clark is a very sensitive individual, very temperamental, and what is commonly called highstrung. When the indictment was returned he was so hurt and so humiliated, that instead of fighting back like a redblooded, two-fisted man and branding this woman for what she really was, he bowed his head in shame and retired from active public life.

"A few of us were not satisfied with what happened to Mr. Clark in the Mann act case and we proceeded to investigate. We learned that if anyone's character had been injured, it was the character of Mr. Clark and not this siren employed to bring about the indictment of Clark. These facts were laid before the membership of the klan in the only way that it was possible to get them before them, that is to say, by personal report. And after a time it began to penetrate the consciousness of the membership that E. Y. Clark had been the victim of a framed case. Doubtless the Federal Court at Houston, Tex., finally took the same view of it, because instead of sending Mr. Clark to prison as he should have done if he was guilty, the Federal judge seemed to be pleased to close the case with a mere fine.

Hit Simmon's Friend.

"The next sniping attack was made against a Dr. Johnson who was a devoted friend of Col. Simmons. Dr. Johnson had made an unfortunate marriage in his early life to a woman who seemed to have the impression that she had married his checkbook and not the individual.

"After having exhausted Johnson's funds, she deserted him and he sued her for divorce. A group of women and men were retained to testify in the divorce case against Dr. Johnson solely with the view of besmirching the character of Dr. Johnson in a community where he had borne an unimpeached reputation for a quarter of a century.

"The next effort was to frame a woman case against Capt. Wm. S. Coburn, an attorney, of Atlanta, Ga., who was later murdered. At the time attempts were made to involve Capt. Coburn by framing a woman case on him, I was talked to in Columbus, O. The date was the night of July 12, or shortly thereafter, 1923, at Buckeye Lake, O., in a cottage which I occupied. The conversation occurred on the front porch facing directly east and there were three other men present. One of them was a gunman.

'Coburn Must Go.'

"In that conversation I was told 'Coburn must be eliminated by one means or another. He is trying to bring out some matters in a lawsuit that will be embarrassing which cannot be overcome by proper proof? If Coburn attempts to produce something in court that is false, then that can be very easily established, and instead of doing any injury to the klan or to you personally, if it is false, it will act as a boomerang, and will result in tremendous good in this; that it can be pointed to as another one of the false reports circulated for the purpose of destroying the activity of the klan and destroying the confidence of the membership in their leaders.'

"The speaker seemed to be very angry and said in an acrimonious, snarly manner, 'I said he's got to go. And what I mean is I'm going to get him.' I said, 'Why, I am surprised that you should take this attitude. If Mr. Coburn has anything to say that is just and should be said, everyone is entitled to hear it. If what he has to say is false, it will be without weight and in the long run will result in great good.' He replied, 'I haven't time to be thinking about no highfaultin ideas. What I've got to think about is to get this Coburn before he makes trouble.'

Murder Suggested.

"I dropped the subject at that time and next discussed it on board my yacht on Lake Huron on or about the 25th day of August, 1923. There was quite a party aboard and we were on our way from Detroit to Alpena, Mich. One night about 10 o'clock, after everyone else on board had retired to their staterooms, I was sitting with a man on deck towards the stern of the yacht. The discussion was somewhat light and superficial. Suddenly he leaned over in an apparently confidential manner, caught hold of my arm, and said, 'Can't you get hold of somebody to bump Coburn off?' I said, 'What do you mean?' He replied 'I mean that Coburn must be eliminated. If he succeeds in bringing out what he is trying to bring out in a lawsuit in Atlanta, it will ruin me. I am just about getting to where I can't afford to be interfered with by him.' I answered him, 'When I came into this organization I came into it with the thought that it was dedicated to a high spiritual and moral philosophy and that direct action and violence had no part or place in its makeup. I am wholly without interest in any personal difficulty that may exist between you and Mr. Coburn.' He said, 'Well, when a thing like that is on your mind you just have to talk it over with somebody. I am going to get rid of Coburn and his whole outfit. If old Simmons don't keep his mouth shut we will send him over the road with a man who comes back alone.' So far as I recall now that is the substance of the conversation that occurred at that time.

KLAN DEPOSITION REVEALS PLOTS

Weave Simmon's Plot.

"At a latter date in Cincinnati Hotel, I again talked about the matter. This conversation must have occurred between the 1st and the 10th of September, although I cannot be specific as to this date. I was told at that time that it was the plan to discredit Col. Simmons and discredit Capt. Coburn by involving them with a woman. The plotters were then in communication with the same woman used to frame the Mann act violation against E. Y. Clark and they had succeeded in having her pose for photographs which were shown to me at the time. And it was further explained that the intention was then to take photographs of Col. Simmons and Capt. Coburn and other men intended for disgrace, and by a dual process of exposure, produce a picture which would leave the impression in the public mind or in the minds of those who saw the photograph that Col. Simmons and Mr. Coburn and other men were guilty of serious offenses. I unceremoniously left the conference and thereafter left the 28th day of September, 1922, or about that date, they wired me from Hot Springs, Ark., asking me to go there for a conference.

"There was in my mind at the time an all too vivid and gruesome memory of the things told me in Cincinnati about plans to assassinate the characters of Col. Simmons and Mr. Coburn. I also remembered the previous conversation at Buckeye Lake where it was made distinctly plain that they intended to murder or have murdered Capt. William S. Coburn.

Stephenson Disgusted.

"I therefore wired substantially the following: 'I am disgusted with the practice of being called to all parts of the country for the sole purpose of engaging in conferences with you which have for their subject a scheme to besmirch the name of numerous men upon whose exertion in perilous times the honor and happiness of the community may depend. You will therefore accept my resignation from all connections with you and your organization.' That is my present memory of the exact text of the telegram. Certainly that is the correct sense of it. Therefore a man came to Columbus, O., and asked me why I wanted to resign. I told him I did not want to have my name identified with an organization that was plotting to assassinate the character of men whom I knew to be good and honest, and I certainly did not feel that I could afford to continue my affiliations with them after they had made it plain to me that they intended to take the life of Capt. Coburn and possibly that of other men. I told him that I was profoundly impressed with the principles of the Ku Klux Klan as they had been taught by the organization over which I had control, which certainly was at variance with what they had been taught elsewhere. He asked me if it was my intention to launch into an open fight against national headquarters. I assured him that I had no such thought in mind and told him that in the event that he advocated a program which I could conscientiously support, he could depend upon my enthusiastic co-operation. And when he pursued a policy which I could not support, he could rely upon the charity of my silence until after January 21, 1925, at which time I reserved to myself the right to pursue my own course. I had a very specific reason at that time for wanting a truce until 1925 because, to engage in an open fight, would have interfered very seriously with some plans I had in mind and of which they had no knowledge and so far as I know have no knowledge yet."

RELIEF FROM FRIGID WAVE PROMISED TOMORROW

COLD WEATHER HALTS FLOODS IN NORTH

Relief from unseasonable April frigidity is on the way, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman announced today, and tomorrow southerly breezes are scheduled to supplant the penetrating northwest wind that chilled Easter paraders and left a coating of ice on ponds and puddles.

The mercury dropped to 30 degrees at 8 o'clock this morning, the lowest in the last 24 hours. A gradual rise set in soon afterward when the sun's influence began to be felt. A low temperature of 30 tonight with slowly rising mercury tomorrow is forecast.

"The freeze this morning was light," said Brotzman, "and caused no damage to budding fruit trees in this district. Buds in the present stage of development will stand 25 degrees."

Easter promenaders faced a wind that reached a velocity of 34 miles an hour yesterday. The mercury ranged from 32 in the morning to 44 in the afternoon.

COLD CHECKS FLOODS

NEW YORK, April 9—(AP)—Cold weather today checked Easter floods in Northern New York, Vermont, New Hampshire and the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec. melted snow and started the ice melsted snow and started the ice down the rivers, and heavy rains over the week-end had sent many streams out of their banks, disrupting rail traffic and communication systems.

Two men were killed when the raging Chaudiere River swept their wagon off a bridge near St. Lambert, Que., and two members of a Canadian National Railway passenger train were believed drowned when the engine and baggage car of the train, en route to Montreal from Quebec, dropped through a bridge at Drummondville, Que.

The disastrous floods of last year were recalled in Vermont with several temporary bridges erected last summer, carried away.

Many of the highways near Burlington were almost impassable. The Connecticut River at one time was 11 feet above normal and the Passumpic River washed out rails at Lyndonville, delaying the Montreal-Boston Express on the Canadian Pacific 15 hours. Overflow from the Connecticut River cut off train service into Colebrook, N. H.

Several streets in Watertown, N. Y., were under water as the Black River rose to within four inches of flood level. Melting snow in the woods north of the city was blamed for the sudden rise. Several mills were closed Saturday when their power wheels were unable to function.

Ice floes from Lake Erie were swept into the Niagara River near Buffalo, endangering small craft and causing the water to back up. A strong north wind was credited with restraining the water and preventing the ice floes from doing serious damage.

In the LaSalle section of Niagara Falls the river was about two and one-half feet above normal, and below the falls it was almost seven feet over.

go to Washington in person. There is also the possibility that should the committee desire to quiz the Governor after his inspection tour is ended, a meeting may be arranged.

SENATOR'S ANSWER

Senator Watson's letter follows:

"My Dear Governor:

"I have delayed answering your communication of the twenty-first ultimo because of the number of witnesses that already have been subpenaed to testify before the Interstate Commerce Committee.

"Assuming that you have a copy of your letter before you, I shall not reproduce the questions you ask, but shall content myself, on the part of the full committee, with answering that seriatim as they appear in your communication.

"1. The committee desires to interrogate you upon the subject of the coal and iron police force and as to their method of operation in the coal fields of Pennsylvania, insofar as the response elicited might throw light upon the entire situation under investigation, and without questioning either your right to appoint or the legality of your appointments.

"2. The committee does not contemplate asking any other Governor to appear simply because the same conditions that are largely the subject of controversy in Pennsylvania do not obtain in any other state. However, should further evidence develop the existence of such confidence elsewhere, it may be that the Governor of that particular state in which such conditions exist will be asked to appear also.

3. Already questions relating to 'wages, freight rates and regulation of production in their application to the entire bituminous coal industry' have been asked of many witnesses and voluntary testimony on all phases of the subject has been offered by many others. Undoubtedly these are legitimate subjects of inquiry in any investigation of the coal industry and upon these questions we earnestly desire to have you state your views.

WELCOME QUIZ

"4. The members of the committee are supposed to be impartial and to sit as judges in the trial of the case. It is not the rule to permit witnesses to interrogate the court, but great freedom of examination and cross-examination is usually permitted by our committee and its members have no objection to your asking such questions as may occur to you while you are on the witness stand.

"5. The committee does not assume that the United States Senate has the right to exercise supervision over the acts of the governor of a sovereign state, but we do claim the right to elicit such information as is proper in the investigation of a question of such widespread interest.

"The large purpose in inviting you to be present is to get your views on the entire subject, you having undoubtedly considered it in all its phases and dealt with it directly in the state of Pennsylvania, that your testimony may be helpful to us in arriving at a solution of this problem if it can be solved by legislation. You may rest assured that you will be treated with all courtesy and that in requesting your presence the members of the committee are actuated by nothing but the best motives.

"Trusting that these answers satisfactorily respond to your inquiries and that you will see fit to appear at as early a date as the business of the state will justify your absence from the seat of government, and with the further assurance that you will be placed on the stand as soon as you appear and thereby not be subjected to unreasonable delay, I am, with high personal regards,

"Very sincerely yours,
"(Signed) JAMES E. WATSON,
Chairman,
"Interstate Commerce Committee."

ROSENBERG IS HELD

berg's case is scheduled before Gov. Al Smith of New York, April 18, Chief Murren was advised. County Detective James S. McGinley will be detailed to attend the hearing.

Abe Wineberg, associate of Rosenberg in the detective operations of the Citizens League, came here voluntarily and gave bail following his indictment last fall.

Scores of bench warrants for arrest of King have been sent to sheriffs of western counties without avail. The detectives have reason to believe King is on his farm near Beatrice, Neb., but they have been unable to get peace officers in that district, said to be remote, to serve the warrant on the former league secretary.

2 OTHERS DYING AFTER GUN DUEL

International News Service.

PORTSMOUTH, O., April 9.—Two men are dead and two others are reported near death in hospitals here today as the result of a gun battle between deputy sheriffs and two men at Slab Run, near here, last night.

Henry Bending, 31, a deputy sheriff, was shot through the head and killed instantly. Garner Vencil, 27, was shot in the abdomen and died in a hospital this morning. Allen Higgins is also in a hospital with serious knife wounds and Green Willis, 47, a deputy, has a bullet wound in the neck which is expected to prove fatal.

Edward Burton, 19, shot in the leg, was removed to the county jail today, charged with murder.

Vencil and Burton are said to have encountered Higgins at a filling station. An altercation began, according to reports, when Vencil asked Higgins to get him some whisky.

Vencil had killed two men previously, according to police. When Higgins refused to go for whisky he and Burton drew knives and cut him seriously, according to reports. The fight continued, Higgins attempting to escape, and the other two following him until they had reached Slab Run, a small ravine a short distance down the road.

By this time a call had been sent to the sheriff's office and as the county car arrived, Vencil and Burton drew pistols, according to reports, and began shooting.

Each Visitor to Movie Studio Of Hollywood Costs Producer About $100, Experts Estimate

LOS ANGELES, April 9.

EXPERTS have estimated that every visitor to a motion picture studio costs the studio in the neighborhood of $100. Visitors distract actors from their work, interrupt the intricate and highly complicated organization which has been built up for the making of motion pictures, and occupy the attention of people who are receiving large salaries to produce pictures.

Two or three groups of visitors alone are able, quite innocently, to increase the costs of a picture by several thousand dollars. They visit a set where a director is endeavoring with patient skill to win from an actor or a cast a certain feeling. Just as he has worked his people up to the right mood, strange faces are seen, peering past the lights, curious, questioning. The mood is broken, the players lose their emotional feeling for the scene. Much time has been lost. The schedule mapped for that day is not carried out.

Through bitter experience studios have learned that two or three visitors admitted to the studio in a spirit of hospitality, can cost their hosts a good many thousand dollars before their apparently harmless tour is over.

Studio officials estimate that studios would be out of business in a year if they were to throw open their doors to everyone desirous of invading the magic land behind the high walls which conceal their fascinating mysteries.

Visitors do get into studios, of course, but the vast majority of those who try, fail. Approximately 5,000 sight-seeing tourists are turned away from the gates of Hollywood motion picture studios each week day.

This figure is based upon the records kept by the gatemen at the various studios. The estimate checks with the figures for tourist traffic compiled by the Los Angeles Board of Trade.

Less than a quarter of 1 per cent who try to "crash the gate" manage to persuade the alert gatemen to let them pass.

Bribes, threats, cajolery, lodge grips and pass words are all tried—vainly. The gateman and the visitor from Iowa may be brother Elks or pally Rotarians in their off hours, but when the gateman is on the gate, he is deaf to prayers.

Because a first-class motion picture studio, like the Paramount studio in Hollywood or the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio in Culver City is the modern equivalent of Barnum's "Greatest Show on Earth," every person in California, visitor or resident, not connected with studio work, would give his or her eye teeth to get inside those mysterious high walls.

BENEFIT SHOW TUESDAY

Pittsburgh officials of the Stanley Company of America have completed arrangements for the benefit show to be given in the Davis Tuesday midnight as a contribution to annual N. V. A. week.

The object of this festivity, participated in by 50 theaters throughout the United States and Canada, is to aid sick and benefit fund of National Vaudeville Artists. This year the proceeds are to be applied to the sanitarium nearing completion at Saranac Lake, N. Y.

Bert Lytell, headliner in the Davis this week, has signified his willingness to act as master of ceremonies. On the program also will be acts now appearing in the Alvin, Penn, Stanley, Davis, Sheridan Square and the Harris. All of these artists have contributed their services, as have also the musicians and stage hands, and indications point to a rousing good show.

Another midnight show for the same purpose will be held in the Sheridan Square Thursday.

In Charge

BERT LYTELL

Mr. Lytell, headliner in the Keith-Albee vaudeville in the Davis this week, is to act as master of ceremonies at the midnight show to be given in the Davis Tuesday to swell the National Vaudeville Artists' sick and death benefit fund.

STOCK REOPENS IN PITT

The second summer season of the George Sharp Players in the Pitt begins tonight, when the company, headed by Ralph Morgan and Anne Forrest, will be seen in "Take My Advice," a comedy in which Mr. Morgan played the leading role on Broadway this season.

Tonight, under the auspices of Syria Temple Automobile Club, the first local performance of "The Love Call" will be presented in Syria Mosque. Beginning tomorrow night, and for the rest of the week, it will hold forth in the Alvin.

William Haines' starring film, "The Smart Set" is in Loew's Penn this week. The stage show, "Sun Shades" features Joe Jackson, tramp comedian of vaudeville fame.

"Tango Shoes" is a comedy novelty act in the Harris this week. The screen feature is "Alex the Great."

In the Sheridan Square, this week, Roscoe Ails, with his band and company, will be one of the vaudeville features. The two screen features are "Woman Wise" and "The Leopard Lady."

Harold Lloyd's latest picture, "Speedy," is being shown in the Grand this week.

Victor McLaglen is the featured player in "A Girl in Every Port," being shown in the Olympic.

The Boys' Club of PITTSBURGH

INCORPORATED

FIVE years ago a small group of Pittsburghers started the Boys' Club of Pittsburgh with the hope of making it a character building influence among the under-privileged boys living in the congested industrial sections of the city. Quarters were rented at 2813 Penn Ave. The experiment proved an immediate success. Membership grew by leaps and bounds. Today there are more than a thousand boys in the club and hundreds more are waiting until room can be made for them.

The Pittsburgh Boys' Club is a non-sectarian organization. It cares for boys without reference to race or creed, from the ages of eight to eighteen, with special emphasis on those up to fifteen years of age. The Boys' Club gives the boys of this congested district a second home, a place where they can spend their leisure time at athletics, games and pre-vocational training. The Boys' Club gives under-privileged boys a clean wholesome outlet for their energy, under the constant supervision of trained, full-time directors.

The boys are under the constant attention of doctors and dentists who look after their physical welfare. Clean healthy minds in clean healthy bodies is the objective of the Boys' Club. In this way it guides under-privileged boys into the path of honest citizenship.

The effectiveness of the work of the Boys' Club is reflected in the fact that, since it started five years ago, juvenile delinquency in the "Strip" district has been reduced nearly fifty per cent and hundreds of boys have been started toward worthwhile careers.

What Must Be Done

The present quarters of the Boys' Club are absolutely inadequate. They are far too small for the present membership and new boys are coming in every day. To remedy this situation the directors have acquired the building of the Lawrenceville branch Y.M.C.A. This building will give room enough to handle not only the boys of the "Strip" but also the under-privileged boys from Lawrenceville, Bloomfield and adjoining districts.

To complete the purchase of the building, remodel it to fit the Boys' Club needs, and provide the beginning of an operating endowment, $200,000 is needed. Every forward-looking Pittsburgher should take a part in this great work of making citizens. Contributions may be mailed to J. S. McCormick, Treasurer, 25th Street and A. V. R. R., Pittsburgh, Pa.

NAB GYPSIES AS SWINDLERS

Three gypsies, said to specialize in selling images of "worst enemies" to gullible buyers, were arrested today as they were about to trade 10 green and yellow coupons for $1,000 real money belonging to Ray Hoffman, parking station proprietor, 202 Penn avenue, detectives allege.

The three, Walter Miller, 22; his wife, Lizzie, and his sister-in-law, Lilly Miller, 22, were held for a hearing in Morals Court tomorrow. Detectives say they are wanted in half a dozen cities for swindling. They traveled in two cars bearing Indiana and Maryland license plates.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—A charge of simple assault, one of three charges against James C. Cox, Jr., son of the former Governor of Ohio and Democratic candidate for President in 1920, in connection with the running down of a laborer in Fifth avenue, was dismissed in court today.

Young Cox still has to face charges in Traffic Court of leaving the scene of an accident and driving while intoxicated.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Numerous Weddings and Small Parties This Week Presage Lifting of Lenten Inactivity Pall

NOW that Easter is over, it begins to look as if the pall of Lenten inactivity in the social world were really going to lift. Several weddings of interest are scheduled for this week, and a few parties are being planned. Most of the social affairs are small, perhaps, but they indicate a return to normal, nevertheless.

Just this afternoon there is a tea in the Allegheny Country Club, given by Mrs. Hepburn Walker, of Lark Inn Fields, Shields, for Mrs. Burgoyne Hamilton, of New York. Mrs. Hamilton and her husband arrived on Saturday to remain over Easter with Mrs. Walker, I understand.

I hear that there was an interesting family gathering in New York over Easter. The James B. Laughlins, of Devonshire street, have been spending some time in New York since they came up from the South, and they were joined there for the week-end by their sons and their wives, the Henry A. Laughlins, of Boston, and the Ledlie A. Laughlins, of Buffalo.

Also in New York over Easter were Mr. and Mrs. John W. Lawrence, of North Highland avenue, who arrived there, I understand, on Saturday.

Two engagements that will prove of interest both in Pittsburgh and in Sewickley have just been announced. One is that of Rebekah Law Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kennedy Brown, of this city and Sewickley, and William Woodbridge Upham. Mr. Upham is a son of the Nathaniel Janeway Uphams, of Duluth, Minn., and St. Petersburg, Fla.

The other betrothal is that of a Harrisburg girl who has many family connections in Sewickley. She is Kathryn Fleming Cherry, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Waldo Cherry, of Harrisburg, and she is to marry the assistant pastor of her father's church in Harrisburg, the Rev. J. Harold Thomson. Dr. Cherry is pastor of the Pine street Presbyterian Church there. Kathryn is a niece of Mrs. Paul N. Critchlow, of Sewickley, and her mother was Sara Fleming before she was married, a member of the old Fleming family, of Sewickley.

Among the travelers who are returning home again is Mrs. James R. Oliver, of Beaver road, Shields. Mrs. Oliver has been abroad for some time. She stopped in Egypt for a while and also visited her daughter, the Marchesa Editta Dusmet, in Rome. Another who has returned home is Mrs. James G. Pontefract, of Shields, who has been spending a part of the winter in Palm Beach. The Tracy W. Guthries, of Woodland road, Edgeworth, are home, too. They have been at Pass Christian, Miss., for the past six weeks. And Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Messer, of Glen Osborne, who have been with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Semple, of Sewickley, at their winter home at Coconut Grove, Miami, are on their way home by motor, I understand. They will stop for a while in Washington before getting home. Mrs. Owen Davies Odell and her daughter, Sally, are back at the Manse in Thorn street, Sewickley, too, after spending the past month at Miami Beach. Also the Harlow B. Wheelers, of Academy avenue, are back from Florida. And still another returned traveler is Mrs. James Elwyn Brown, of Beaver road, who has been cruising in the West Indies. Her daughter, Priscilla, went on to New York to meet her mother, and they returned to Sewickley yesterday.

Another small party scheduled for the week is a luncheon which Mrs. Frank E. Richardson, of Woodland road, Sewickley, and her daughter, Mrs. John L. Wigton, of Academy avenue, are going to give tomorrow in Mrs. Richardson's home. They are entertaining for Mrs. William Ayres Galbraith, of Thorn street, who, you remember, was Katherine Deming Clapp, daughter of the George H. Clapps, of Sewickley, before her wedding early in February.

Mrs. Walter S. Heron will be in charge of the sale of infants' clothing and toys, and the painted articles will be sold by Mrs. John A. Penney and Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker. Mrs. Ambrose N. * * *

Kensel, of Ambridge. Several parties have been given recently for Miss Pechstein, among them a luncheon and theater party at which Miss Ruby Stoner and Miss Eleanor McClelland were hostesses, and a bridge luncheon given in the University Club by Miss Margaret Ryan and Miss Leah Conroy.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. DeWalt and their son, Maurice, of Erie, are guests of Mrs. John Roth of Sherlock street, North Side, over Easter. Mrs. Roth's nephew, Maurice R. Hollar, of Panama, is also spending his Easter vacation with her.

POLAR FLIERS MUTE

NO WILKINS RADIO IN 3 DAYS

SEWARD, Alaska, April 9.—(AP.)—Belief that something had happened to Capt. George H. Wilkins' radio set was expressed by radio operators here today following the third day and night of the aviator's silence.

Army and Navy radio operators also expressed belief that Capt. Wilkins had not begun his projected flight to Spitzbergen over the North Pole. Last word from Wilkins at Point Barrow was that cloudy weather had kept his plane on the ice Thursday, the date set for his takeoff.

Government operators have kept at their sets with the hope that weather conditions would change so that Wilkins and Pilot Carl B. Eielson might start their 2,100-mile hop. Wilkins planned to keep in touch with the outside world with a radio transmitter installed on his plane when the flight was actually begun.

BALDONNEL, IRISH FREE STATE, April 9.—(AP.)—Capt. Hermann Koehl and Col. James C. Fitzmaurice, co-pilots of the Bremen trans-Atlantic venture, today awaited the regular Atlantic weather report for tonight to determine whether they will hop off for the United States tomorrow.

Baron Von Huenefeld, the German sponsor of the flight, impatient at the long delay which has held the Bremen at Baldonnel, is willing to start any time that his pilots will take the plane into the air, but Koehl and Fitzmaurice say they will not start until the weather is favorable.

CHARGES UNTRUE, THELMA SAYS

Mrs. Thelma Williams Gray, the "Miss Pittsburgh" of 1926, returned to her home at Trafford City yesterday, after having been detained by the Federal authorities both at Detroit and Buffalo. She came back, she said, to inform her friends and the public that the charges on which she was arrested were unfounded.

Mrs. Gray, better known as Miss Williams, was touring with a revue, when she and the promoter, were taken into custody on the complaint of a woman, whose daughter was a member of the troupe.

"I was exonerated last week of all those horrible things they said about me," said Miss Williams, "and I want it understood there was no truth in them, and they were absolutely unjustified.

"One of our girls was dismissed from the revue, and got into trouble when her mother told the authorities she had run away from home. She accused the promotor and me of taking her from home. However, she told the grand jury she left home of her own accord.

"The papers said my mother had asked for my detention, but neither she nor any other of my relatives knew a thing about this matter until they read it in the papers. They were terribly stunned, especially as they could not get into communication with me for several days."

Miss Williams was a school teacher before winning the beauty contest and becoming "Miss Pittsburgh." She has since married and gone on the stage.

Asked what her plans were, she answered that after all the excitement she had experienced during the last few weeks she thought it would be best for her to rest quietly at Trafford City for a while.

Wife Held As Bullet Kills Man

After accusing his wife of having shot him, Michael Walencyzs, 56, of O'Hara township, died today in St. Margaret's Hospital. Mrs. Helen Walencyzs, 50, denies the charge and asserted her husband shot himself.

She was committed to jail on a charge of murder.

Late yesterday Mrs. Walencyzs ran from their home after four shots had been fired and announced to neighbors that her husband had attempted suicide. En route to the hospital the victim said his wife had done the shooting. A revolver with four empty shells was found in the house.

HELD AS SQUIRE'S FIXER

Tom Harrison, 36, of McKees Rocks, was described in Morals Court today as "the fixer" for Justice of the Peace C. J. Ranshaw and four constables who have been held for court as members of an extortion ring.

City Detective P. E. Moran testified that Harrison suggested certain raids to the officers and after the raids "talked business" with the arrested persons to suppress evidence.

Magistrate A. D. Brandon held Harrison for further investigation.

DR. SMULL TO ADDRESS OHIO NORTHERN ALUMNI

Dr. Thomas J. Smull, executive secretary of Ohio Nothern University, will be guest speaker at the annual Founder's Day banquet of the local alumni chapter tomorrow night in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Dr. Walter F. Rittman, head of the department of commercial engineering at Carnegie Institute of Technology, president of the local chapter, will be toastmaster. The committee in charge of the banquet is composed of C. L. Sterling, S. A. Ringer and E. L. Baird.

THELMA WILLIAMS.

Free from the tangle in which she became enmeshed when the promoter of a beauty revue of which she was a member, was indicted on a Federal charge in Buffalo, Miss Williams, "Miss Pittsburgh" of 1926, who was held as a witness in the case, is back home in Trafford City. No charges were made against Miss Williams.

Why We Behave Like Human Beings

by George A. Dorsey, Ph.D., LI.D.

How Man May Reach His Goal of Faster, Freer Life

Creative Evolution, or Intelligent Behavior Based on Experience, Is His Instrument

In his chapter of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings" in the Saturday Sun-Telegraph, readers received enlightenment from Dr. Dorsey on why education fails in solving the problems of life. He expresses the opinion that youth should have "more raw meat and bones to chew on," in order that the intelligence so much needed in the world might be developed.

"Man Alone Can Set Man Free"

YOU and I and all living beings differ from dead things in one respect: we grow, and by one process: we incorporate inorganic and dead organic matter into our individual bodies. Our nature is such that we are impelled to do this. This gives us a clue to organic evolution.

GEORGE A. DORSEY

For, note: the matter which must be incorporated within our bodies is outside us; we must get it. During organic evolution, it was not life that evolved; it was the rate and the kind of life that was lived; faster, freer.

The visible agencies finally evolved for the faster, freer life were: motor mechanism of bony levers worked by muscle engines; special analyzers or distance receptors; cerebral cortex; and vocal cords and voice mechanism. These agencies made for improved locomotion, more exact information, more space for storing information, and improved facilities for exchanging information.

Are language and culture the inevitable consequences of man's nature? Are they the goal of the faster, freer life made possible by certain agencies and mechanisms? Is man himself the finished product of an evolution which continually created life on higher levels? The idea is worth manipulating.

Consider the emotional drive. Where has it not carried man? To what heights and depths has it not driven him? The fiery passion for life, the haunting fear of the unknown; the age-long persecutions, the massacres, the burnings, the torturings, the revilings, done in the name of God to prove that God is just!

Culture Inevitable

It was inevitable that upon his bisexual world man should erect a family hearth; it was not inevitable that he should invent this or that kind of household god, or that upon that hearth he rear a harem or found an order of celibacy or vestal virgins. Of that he should worship his wife or degrade her to a parasite, or that she should make a fool or a criminal of him.

It was inevitable that his love for life and fear of death should lead him to magic rites and groveling superstitions; it was not inevitable that his religion should be used as a cloak to hide his selfishness, justify his greed and sanctify his lust for blood and gold.

Culture, in short, was inevitable. Man was, man did.

Here it is, all about us: evidence that the drive behind life has lost none of its power; proof that, impelled by that drive, man can build as well as destroy; that in his nature is more of Vishnu the Creator than of Siva the Destroyer. And this human culture that is ours by inheritance and by the efforts of the generation now living, is real. It makes up the social and much of the physical environment into which children are today being born. They are the same children, they bring with them the same old organic needs and hungers. How will they fare?

How free are we of today—from war, pestilence, earthquake, volcano, fire, sickness, idiocy, imbecility, pauperism, crime, squalor, shipwreck, stupidity, ignorance, superstition, famine, disease; from accidents of mine, factories, railroads, automobiles and airplanes; from harsh sounds, bad air and foul odors; from scorn, malice and intolerance; from vested interests and established opinion in church, school and government in home, society and nation; from clocks, time-tables and calendars; from the decrees of fashion, the convictions of the mob, the mandates of the politicians? In short, how free are we of the ox goad and the treadmill?

Engaged

PRINCE GUSTAV

The engagement of Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden, eldest son of the Crown Prince of Sweden, to Princess Theedera, daughter of Prince and Princess Andrew of Greece, is reported.

Fast, yes; we live at an incredible speed. Experience is disseminated and things and beings are transported across lands and seas unknown a few centuries ago, and at a speed inconceivable to the pioneers of the Pony Express. We cannot yet travel as fast as sound waves, but it is not incredible that a future generation will travel as fast as light-waves.

In so far as man has speeded living, and to the extent that he has freed human beings, he is fulfilling his destiny. But has he completed his mission? Has he made the most of his opportunities? Is he progressing, is he on the straight and shining rails, or is he in a maze, a blind alley, an appendix to a cecum which holds the threat of gangrene and destruction? There are criteria for life; is there a biologic criterion for progress?

Note again that, while culture was inevitable, the particular bents culture took were no more inevitable than are the particular words I am now putting down on paper.

Note, too, that history does not repeat itself. Why should it? Who wants it to repeat? To the best of our knowledge, nothing on this planet repeats. While the elements and the energies change not at all, or imperceptibly, the forms matter takes and the work energy performs do change. The organic needs and hungers inhere; they drive man today, as yesterday, as in pre-Cambrian days, they drove his ancestors.

Drove? How? By a stepping up, a raising of the potential of the power. As a result, the machine became more complicated, but more highly integrated; its parts became larger, but under better control; it was capable of more refined work, could vary its output, forecast the future, provide for unforeseen contingencies. This is creative evolution. It was in the direction of freedom. Can we find a biologic concept for freedom? Is there a goal, as it were, to creative evolution?

Our vision is so limited! We know so little of life! Who shall say?

But we shall try. All the cats, dogs, rats and guinea pigs martyred in the name of science have died in vain and all the laboratories built to serve science are illusions, if the net result is but a few human lives saved and no light thrown on what it is that is saved and whether it is worth saving. What quality characterizes man as it does no other animal, his primate ancestors as it does no other order of mammals; which distinguishes a fertilized human ovum from all other protoplasms; which furnishes us a key to human culture, reduces our what-has-evolved to a lowest common denominator, and gives us a clue to the freedom that is the goal of creative evolution? The capacity to modify and delay reactions according to experience. That kind of behavior is called intelligent.

Intelligence is vague; we must give it reality. It means to learn. But every animal learns. The instinctive behavior of many animals is remarkable. But we can speak of the evolution of intelligent behavior. And that is no mere figure of speech. Nor it is without significance that with man, and with man only, we find human intelligence. Of all Primate infants, the human infant alone learns human behavior.

Why? Because it has a larger learning equipment, more ways of obeying impulses, a greater capacity to modify impulses in the light of experience.

Man, as no other animal does, can delay his reactions whereby he adjusts himself to circumstances; he thereby gains a measure of control over his environment denied all other living beings. Such control is biologic freedom, the goal of creative evolution. Intelligence. What this control can lead to 's just beginning to be understood. Scientific intelligence may yet be born. Freedom is as yet only a goal and a long way off, but progress toward freedom will speed up; it is of the nature of living organisms to grow by what they feed on and to climb by their own steps; the greater freedom, the faster the pace toward the goal.

Why is man not as free as he might be? Because his mind is made up; his pride of opinion outweighs his desire to know; he dismisses realities with a "God's in His Heaven—All's right with the world," and neglects the first lesson he ever learned—which is, that he can learn. Because he refuses the dare thrown to him by nature herself; Know thyself; and refuses to heed the warning written across every page of history and strewn across the face of the earth itself; the best defense is offense, versatility rather than walls or armorplate, foresight rather than hindsight. Man alone can set man free.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

AT A meeting of scientists here the other day a woman read the following from a paper: "The solar red shift predicted by Einstein and verified by St. John has been studied for the element magnesium, which has strong lines at relatively high levels in the sun. The two visible triplets at wavelength 3829 and wavelength 5167 were photographed at the Allegheny Observatory, using an arc in vacuum and Fabry-Perot interferometer with orders of interference of 14,000 to 77,000. The wavelengths were measured, using the red neon lines as standards. The solar wavelengths are Rowland's with A. O. B. S. corrections applied. The actual observed shift was found to be less than Einstein's for the 3829 triplet and greater than his for the 5167 triplet. These results are not in accordance with St. John's theory that the color shift of a line varies directly with the level of the sun."

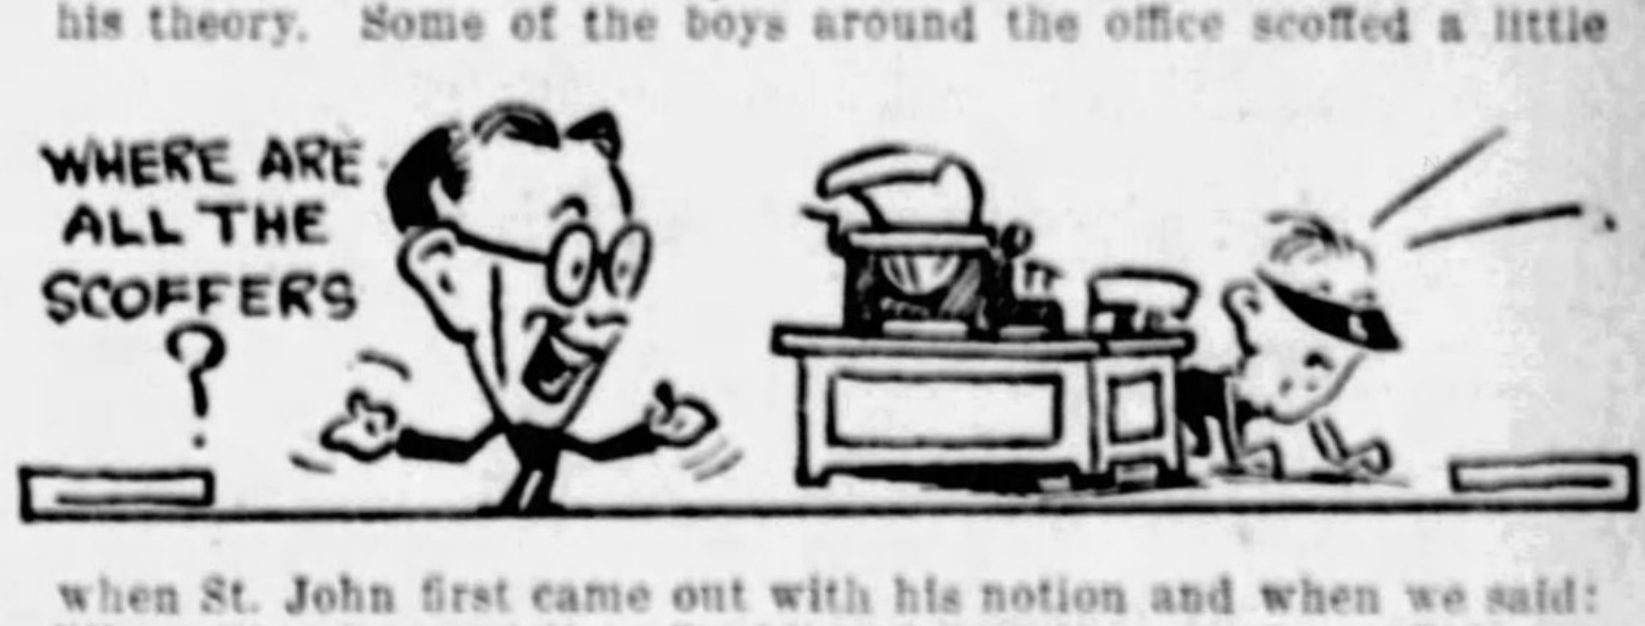
THIS may surprise some of you, but in all modesty this column was just a wee bit skeptical when St. John first announced his theory. Some of the boys around the office scoffed a little when St. John first came out with his notion and when we said: "We will not accept it as final," and now these same scoffers are in hiding. We were not ready to accept the idea the solar shift of a line varies directly with the level of the sun.



WHERE ARE ALL THE SCOFFERS ?

TO THOSE not versed in science all this doubtless sounds quite technical, but it only seems so due to the terminology in which it is expressed. Reduced to language that the layman understands, then, what does this mean? It means, in simple words, that . . . but perhaps we are boring you with details you are not interested in.

POSSIBLY, more readily understood is the paper on the results recorded from the exposure of plants to the light of mercury vapor lamps. "Until very recently only detrimental results have been recorded from the exposure of higher plants to the light of mercury vapor lamps. Moreover in a recent experiment carried out at the Boyce Thompson Institute plants were shown to develop equally as well in sunlight with the ultraviolent end of the spectrum screened off in the full spectrum of sunlight. However, within the past year stimulative effects on the germination and growth of various plants, due to short exposures to the rays of mercury vapor lamps, have been reported.

"IN THE present experiment an attempt has been made to test the effect of such irridiation upon radish seeds and seedlings. Preliminary results indicate a distinctly detrimental effect of 15-minute daily doses of these rays. The harmful results increase proportionately with an increasing number of exposures."

HERE is something that can be brought home to nearly everyone. It is plain that if you have radish seeds and seedlings at home that you must be careful to keep them away from detrimental rays of mercury vapor lamps. At least, after a study of the report submitted, it certainly would be unwise to let the lamp play on them 15 minutes or more daily. A pretty good way, if you can't resist the temptation to put the lamp on your radish seeds, would be to limit your indulgence to, say, three or four minutes a day. It is plain that you are not going to have your radish seeds if you insist on putting the lamp on them much longer than this.

YOU'VE HAD THESE SEEDS NEAR THE MERCURY VAPOR LAMP !
SEEDS
Y-Y-YES !

PERHAPS, the safest way would be to keep the radish seeds, say, in the living room and your mercury vapor lamp in the den on the second floor. By such separation you might have your radish seeds until you reach a ripe old age.

JERRY

The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait

by Elenore Meherin

If Jerry Could Marry Heinie All Their Financial Troubles Would End

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jerry King, good looking, charming and nineteen, falls in love with Saxon Rhodes, a young architect. Marza, her fascinating mother, warns her that idealists like Saxon make poor husbands. When he goes abroad to study, Jerry promises to wait for him. Jerry agrees to wait three years longer. She wonders whether Saxon loves her as completely as she loves him. Saxon's attention to Ora Pringle gives Jerry a pang of jealousy. They attend a week end party where things start to happen. She decides to give Saxon up. She discovers that Marza has another daughter of whose existence her husband had been ignorant. Marza tells Jerry that this sister of hers is dying and needs them both. Stephanie recovers and they go back home. The months pass, and Jerry has not seen Saxon. She goes to a house party and there meets Saxon. Jerry discovers that Stephanie loves Heinie.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

SHE recalled Stephanie's plea as she looked in Heinie's long, sallow face. She had always thought him homely. Homely and good and strong.

Now as the brown eyes that were gentle and full of loyalty met hers, she laughed: "Stephanie thinks you handsome, Heinie; she thinks you perfectly adorable."

Heinie laughed: "Plucky and dear, isn't she? She probably thinks I'm a grand old man, too. Is there a real hope for her? I mean for her walking?"

"There should be! I'm sure of it. I won't think that there isn't. That would be just too much. She's more than dear and plucky, Heinie. You have no idea how sound and true she is. In everything. It's unthinkable that she should be helpless for life."

"It puts a big responsibility on you, having her here. And if she shouldn't be able to walk." Heinie went on in his dogged quiet, "the whole burden would be on you—eventually. How can you meet it, Jerry?"

This was the bleak picture that oppressed her secret thought—Stephanie helpless—she, Jerry, the loser in love and life, eking out a colorless existence for both of them.

She shoved the prospect impatiently aside. "What would you do, Jerry?"

"I'd get by. A person always gets by—somehow. But that's not going to happen! It certainly shall not!"

"She has no people but you?"

"Marza and me. We're enough."

"Jerry," softly, "how are all things going with you?"

She gave a wry smile: "I surmise, Heinie, that you inquire thus subtly as to the state of my amours. I've given them all the air. All of them. I'm free, single and foot-loose for any thrill or deviltry."

"You and Saxon are no longer engaged?"

"That's all off, Heinie." Swiftly and with a little fire in her throat. "I'm out to make good on my own—entirely on my own."

"There's no one else now?"

"No one else."

"Jerry, do you think you could ever care for me? Not right away. But in a year or so? Why don't you let yourself think of me? In any kind of a way. I wouldn't expect you to love me—at first. But I think I could do so many things to make you happy. After a while you'd like me."

Heinie brushed a hand over his disorderly black hair. "I suppose a man always thinks that when there's only one girl in the world for him. I feel so sure that I could be the kind of person you'd be bound to love. I'd do things you'd adore.

"Lately I've thought this, because lately you seem so much sweeter. You seem to be glad when I come. And you never high-hat me any more."

He flushed and turned humble, adoring eyes to hers. "Does it mean anything, Jerry?"

"It means that I think you're a prince, Heinie. And, of course, I'm glad having you around. I don't know what Stephanie would have done without you. You've no idea how you've colored the days for her. How can I help love that in you, Heiniee? Please keep it up. She'd be lost without you.

"But more than anything else, it means that I'd love to see you happy. There's a girl somewhere for you, Heinie, and she'll give you the love you deserve. You wait for her—and you keep your eyes open for her. That's all a fiction about only one girl for one man. Any number of the same type would do. You give her a chance, Heinie!

"And don't think of me. I'm all out of love, and I'm not going to marry or think of it. But I like you like anything."

He sat very quiet—big and loose-limbed and strong. "You want me to keep coming around!"

"Ever so much. Yes!"

"Like me enough, Jerry, to call on me if you get in a tight place? I'd—I'd be grateful." And, with an awkward laugh: "I'm a junior partner now. I've plenty on my own account. And wouldn't I love to make things easier for you! I've an idea they're going to be pretty tough. Too tough—"

"I think that would be good for me. I've always wanted to be tested. . . ."

"But if the going is too hard? . . . You won't want Stephanie to suffer. . . ."

"Oh, I'll call on you! . . . Don't worry . . . there's not a shy bone in the whole 208 of mine. You're a dear ole darling—"

Jerry sat before the fire, her back to Marza. She thought of Heinie. And Hugh Hammond. And thinking of these became wild with loneliness.

She crouched down and added small bits of coal to the flames. Would Heinie come to care for Stephanie? Stephanie who was so friendly and true—so naively luring? She pictured the two of them. How fairy-like might be such happiness!

And she pictured herself after they were gone. Alone again with Marza. Marza and she growing old together.

Marza began walking about the room touching the covers of books. She did this when she was agitated.

"She looked well, didn't she, Jerry?"

"Considering what she's been through."

"She's alive—anyway!"

"Yes—mother, did you arrange for that mortgage?"

"Not quite."

"What do you mean—not quite?"

"Well—they're considering it. You know, we have $12,000 on the place. There was originally $7,000. They have so many apartment house mortgages. With this five additional it would make $17,000."

Said Jerry dully: "What will we do if they refuse? We can't even pay the hospital bills!"

"They won't refuse. I'll manage. The place warrants the loan—easily. That I should worry for that," said Marza, with a high, half-sobbing laugh. "Worry for that!"

"I could marry Heinie," thought Jerry, lying awake long after midnight. "I could make it wonderful for everyone.

"And what of it? I'll never care for anyone again . . . anyone else."

She went on with a flush: "I could easier marry Hugh!"

She was startled to have said this. She remembered Hugh's face with the pleading sweetness like a presence on his mouth . . . his gay, whimsical laugh. A nice, happy way to propose. Not making it so deadly serious, as though his happiness were of such monumental importance. Nice, humorous attitude.

She liked Hugh . . . liked him from the beginning.

Suddenly—so suddenly that she felt insulted hot tears crept to her lids. She laughed contemptuously.

She was alone in Erskine's shop late the next afternoon. She was hurrying to finish . . . a long trip out to the hospital in the Mission where Stephanie lay.

She turned at a step and for a moment stared mutely. Saxon was coming toward her. He looked thin and eager and very young.

CHAPTER XLVI.

SAXON came with an uncertain grin as though dubious of his welcome. He wore a brown suit with a faint red line and a snappy crimson tie. His eyes sparkled as though he'd been to bed early for a night or two.

"Well," thought Jerry, noting the pleasing details and excited by his sudden entrance. "What now!"

"I've landed you some good jobs," said he, the grin widening. "One here in town and a beaut in Monterey. Here's the hop."

He pulled a little card from his pocket, laid it on the table before which she was perched on a high, rickety stool.

He did all this with a great briskness like a small boy rushing in with glib chatter and a fist full of flowers to cover up the breaking of the neighbor's window. Oh, nobody'd be mean enough to notice that!

"Do you get a commission for the jobs you get on your own?"

"I've been promised it. I've only been here two months."

He looked over her shoulder at the sketch of a lovely interior—a living room and hall. "It's a pity to waste your gift on stuff like this. Your coloring is awfully good, Jerry. Do you think you'll stay on at this?"

"Yes. There's a great fascination in it. And if you keep landing me heavenly jobs, I'll be wealthy."

"There's no particular reason why I shouldn't be interested in you, is there?"

A sudden darkening of his eyes as they took courage and glanced with faint hostility to hers: "Any reason why we shouldn't be good friends, Jerry?"

"None that I know. Didn't I just remark that you were a golden asset? Besides," with a quick rippling laugh, and recalling the bitter, contemptuous names she had flung at him—cocky cavalier, Don Juan in rompers—"Besides, you're a big boy, and I like you very much."

This was unexpected and brought a flush to his cheeks. He counted on reproaches and a hurt attitude. Or at best a silent contempt.

He was a little nonpulsed: "Then you're not angry with me?"

"No. Not at all."

"But you were. I felt awfully—"

He hesitated and she broke in with an impish: "I know—you feel awfully caught!"

There was something subtly derisive in her banter as though his infidelity were of no consequence. Much more flattering to have incited her furious anger.

He wouldn't believe that she didn't care.

"You were furious the other night. You handed me a filthy line."

She swung round on the stool and with an engaging twinkle puffed smoke in his face. "Yes. You see, it was this way. I was young and innocent. And in my tender youth, which mercifully has vanished, I idealized you. A sun-god with the mirth and breeze of all outdoors about you. A he-man from the great open spaces.

Mary Harrison Sounds Madge on Philip Veritzen's Feelings Toward Her

MARY HARRISON waited only for my door to close upon us before putting the excited question which I knew had been near her lips ever since Philip Veritzen's departure.

"Oh, Auntie Madge, did you ask him?" she queried. "What did he say? Will he see me? When?"

"Yes, to the first three questions, Mary," I told her, with a smile at her impetuous manner, "and he will see you Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock."

"Oh, what an eternity to wait!" she exclaimed. Then, at the expression in my face she threw herself upon me contritely.

"I'm so ashamed, Auntie Madge," she said. "I'm just a little beast to be so ungrateful, when you've taken so much pains for me."

"Your repentance is as unreasonable as your impatience," I told her laughingly. "Now let's forget about both. He's promised to see you Tuesday, and you'll have to content your soul until then."

"I know," she said meekly, then added hesitantly:

"Did he say anything about me when you told him, or don't you want to tell me?"

Swiftly I went over my brief colloquy with Mr. Veritzen. No, there was nothing in the words which need cause Mary any uneasiness, and there was no compulsion upon me to reveal the grimness of his eyes and the sardonic smile which I had noted with forboding for the girl.

"Our conversation upon that point was very brief," I told her. "I said that you were anxious to see him for a few minutes, and he answered that he was equally anxious to see you. He is coming to see me on another matter on Tuesday, and I suggested that he talk to you at the same time. He said that arrangement would suit him perfectly. Now you have the complete interview."

"H'm!" said Mary. "Sounds bad, his wanting to talk to me. But I can't help it if he does toss me out into the snow. I suppose I can earn my living somewhere."

I knew that the flippant comment covered real terror, but I knew also that the only help I could give her would be to follow her own line, so I answered carelessly:

"I don't think I'd worry about a snow bath for a while, Mary. There, those snaps on the shoulder are the ones I'm afraid of, this gown is so easily torn. Now if you'll help me off with it, please."

I lifted my arms and purposely made the task of getting off the filmy gown as long as possible. My ruse was successful. By the time she had drawn it off, hung it upon a hanger and put it in the closet, she had conquered her uneasiness.

But she was not ready to leave me. I saw that, and I wondered from which particular angle she would approach the subject of young Noel Veritzen which I guessed was troubling her conscience a bit. But to my surprise when she spoke, it was not Noel's name which came from her lips.

"Look here, Auntie Madge," she said, her eyes sparkling with interest. "Did you hear the Lincoln dame tonight when Uncle Dicky proposed drawing her with that dog?"

Her tone and words betrayed more clearly than she knew the jealous rancor which she cherished toward our mysterious young neighbor. I wondered, not for the first time, whether that rancor did not have its origin in a deeper regard for Noel Veritzen than either Mary or anyone else guessed.

THE TRUTH ABOUT BRAN AND CONSTIPATION

Thousands of people eat bran regularly for the healthful roughage it provides. It is a splendid practice. But be sure you are really getting all the roughage you need when you eat bran. Doctors say it takes 100% bran to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only accomplish part-way results. That is why they fail!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. Just two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

You'll like the flavor and crispness of ALL-BRAN. Serve with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Mix with other cereals. Sprinkle into soups. Use in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SCHEDULE FOR WEEK

House of Representatives

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The official program of the House for the week, as outlined by Republican leaders in letters to members, looks something like this:

MONDAY—Committees, etc., etc.

TUESDAY—Undetermined. (Opening of baseball season.)

There'll be a liberal congressional representation at Griffith Stadium when the Nationals and the Boston Red Sox play the opener.

LINDY "BOMBED" WITH EGGS

LOS ANGELES, April 9.—(AP.)—A newspaper report says that Col. Charles Lindbergh was treated to a unique barbecue picnic near Carpinteria yesterday when Easter eggs—two dozen uncooked ones—were delivered as bombs from the air.

Lindbergh as well as the other guests scrambled—for safety.

The trans-Atlantic flier and several other persons were guests of Joel Remington Fythian at the barbecue near the Fythian estate. Soon after the picnic began, two of the guests were seen in close conversation and both left soon afterward for an air field. After purchasing two dozen eggs they chartered a plane and flew over the picnic scene.

As the first egg "bomb" fell, all of the guests fled to safety.

Lindbergh, who is vacationing in Santa Barbara, appeared to enjoy the Easter egging.

PLAN TO WIDEN BELLEFIELD AVE.

Bellefield avenue between Fifth avenue and Forbes street will be a 94-foot thoroughfare if council approves a plan proposed today by the Better Traffic Committee. According to the committee, the widening not only will relieve traffic congestion in the vicinity but will make the center line of the street symmetrical with the axis of Carnegie Institute, adding to the beauty of the district.

The committee also proposed widening Ellsworth avenue between Aiken and Highland avenues to 26 feet by reducing the width of the sidewalks. Both proposals are said to be acceptable to property owners on the streets.

A study of the corner of Penn and Center avenue with a view to relieving the traffic situation at that point in East Liberty also was urged by the committee. An old building in the southeast corner is being razed, a communication to council said, and plans for improving the corner should be made before the new office building proposed is started.

COUNCIL TO GET SALES BILL

Director B. L. Succop of the Department of Suppplies will be instructed to conduct all future sales of city property through competitive bids, according to an ordinance to be introduced in Council today by President James F. Malone. Future sales will be advertised in the newspapers and the department selling the goods will notify the controller, as well as the director of suppplies, that he has material for sale, the ordinance directs.

Last week complaint was made by the United Iron and Metals Company that Director Succop had sold for $162 at a private sale, junk on which it had bid $865.

When Skinny Men Grow Manly

Five or 10 Pounds of Flesh on Their Bones Make a Lot of Difference.

Out in the country they used to say "Just as thin as a fence rail" and after Jim had somehow managed to grow more shapely and add more weight they used to say.

"Jim's a real good looking fellow since he took on flesh."

And that's the way it goes all over the world; the skinny, gaunt man can never be attractive or look manly until he puts more flesh on his scantily covered bones.

Many thin men have gained in weight and at the same time in vigor and attractiveness—no thin man can do it unless he tries.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at May's Drug Stores, or any drug store in America.

2 HELD AT HEARING AFTER RAID IN HILL

After Sam Maro, arrested in a raid on an alleged "moonshine confectionery" at 1222 Colwell street, had denied in Morals Court today that he owned the place, Joe Noto, a clerk, contradicted him. Magistrate A. D. Brandon held both for court.

Father John's Medicine Helped Him Gain Weight"

"My baby was sick, pale and run down. One of my neighbors recommended Father John's Medicine and since giving it to him he has felt fine and has had no colds. He has also gained weight. I am giving it to all my children." (Signed) Mrs. Rose De Pontliard, Shirley, Mass.

For children who are pale and thin, who suffer from repeated colds, Father John's Medicine has proven its value for more than 70 years. It builds new strength because it is pure and wholesome nourishment.

Old Folks Can Feel Younger Now

It's the Little Daily Does That Does It.

You can't stop the flight of time, that's sure. But what's the difference if your hair is gray and a few more wrinkles and birthdays added to your collection. The only question that matters is "How old do you feel?" and the answer to this is to be found in the condition of your "inner works."

Keep them working smoothly and your blood pure and vigorous and you'll always feel young. The best way to do this is adopt the Kruschen habit.

The little daily dose of Kruschen Salts acts as a mild tonic on the kidneys, liver and bowels and brings about a healthy, thorough performance that drives all impurities from the system.

This means that your blood stream is full of pure blood that is carried to every part of the body, creating new vigor.

Don't envy those hale, hearty, always cheery folks who are carrying youthful health into old age—be one of them. Follow the Kruschen habit religiously every morning—2 tablets of Kruschen Salts in your morning cup of coffee.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THE MONDAY ROAST

TECHNICALLY speaking, a modern couple are happily married as long as they keep track of each other's telephone numbers.

Never try to "make over" your last year's romance. These spring love affairs are so flimsy that they soon lose all their color and become positively moth-eaten from season to season.

HELEN ROWLAND

Some men start "settling down" right after the honeymoon; but the average wife has to wait for neuritis, gout or rheumatism to slow down her husband's tempo and keep him from hobbling off the straight and narrow path.

The divorce lawyers will go right on flourishing just as long as men and women continue to look upon the wedding ceremony as a sleight-of-hand performance, which will turn a butterfly into a grub and transform a wild rambler into a clinging vine.

A woman is not absolutely safe, sane and middle-aged until she ceases to ask the druggist whether the lipstick is kiss proof or not.

One comforting thing about companionate marriage will be that the wedding presents won't have to be "solid" but just lightly plated and guaranteed to last for four or five years.

Many a man thinks that he has remained a bachelor "by choice" when it is merely by the grace of Heaven that no woman has set her mind on him sufficiently to throw the halter over his neck and back him into the shafts.

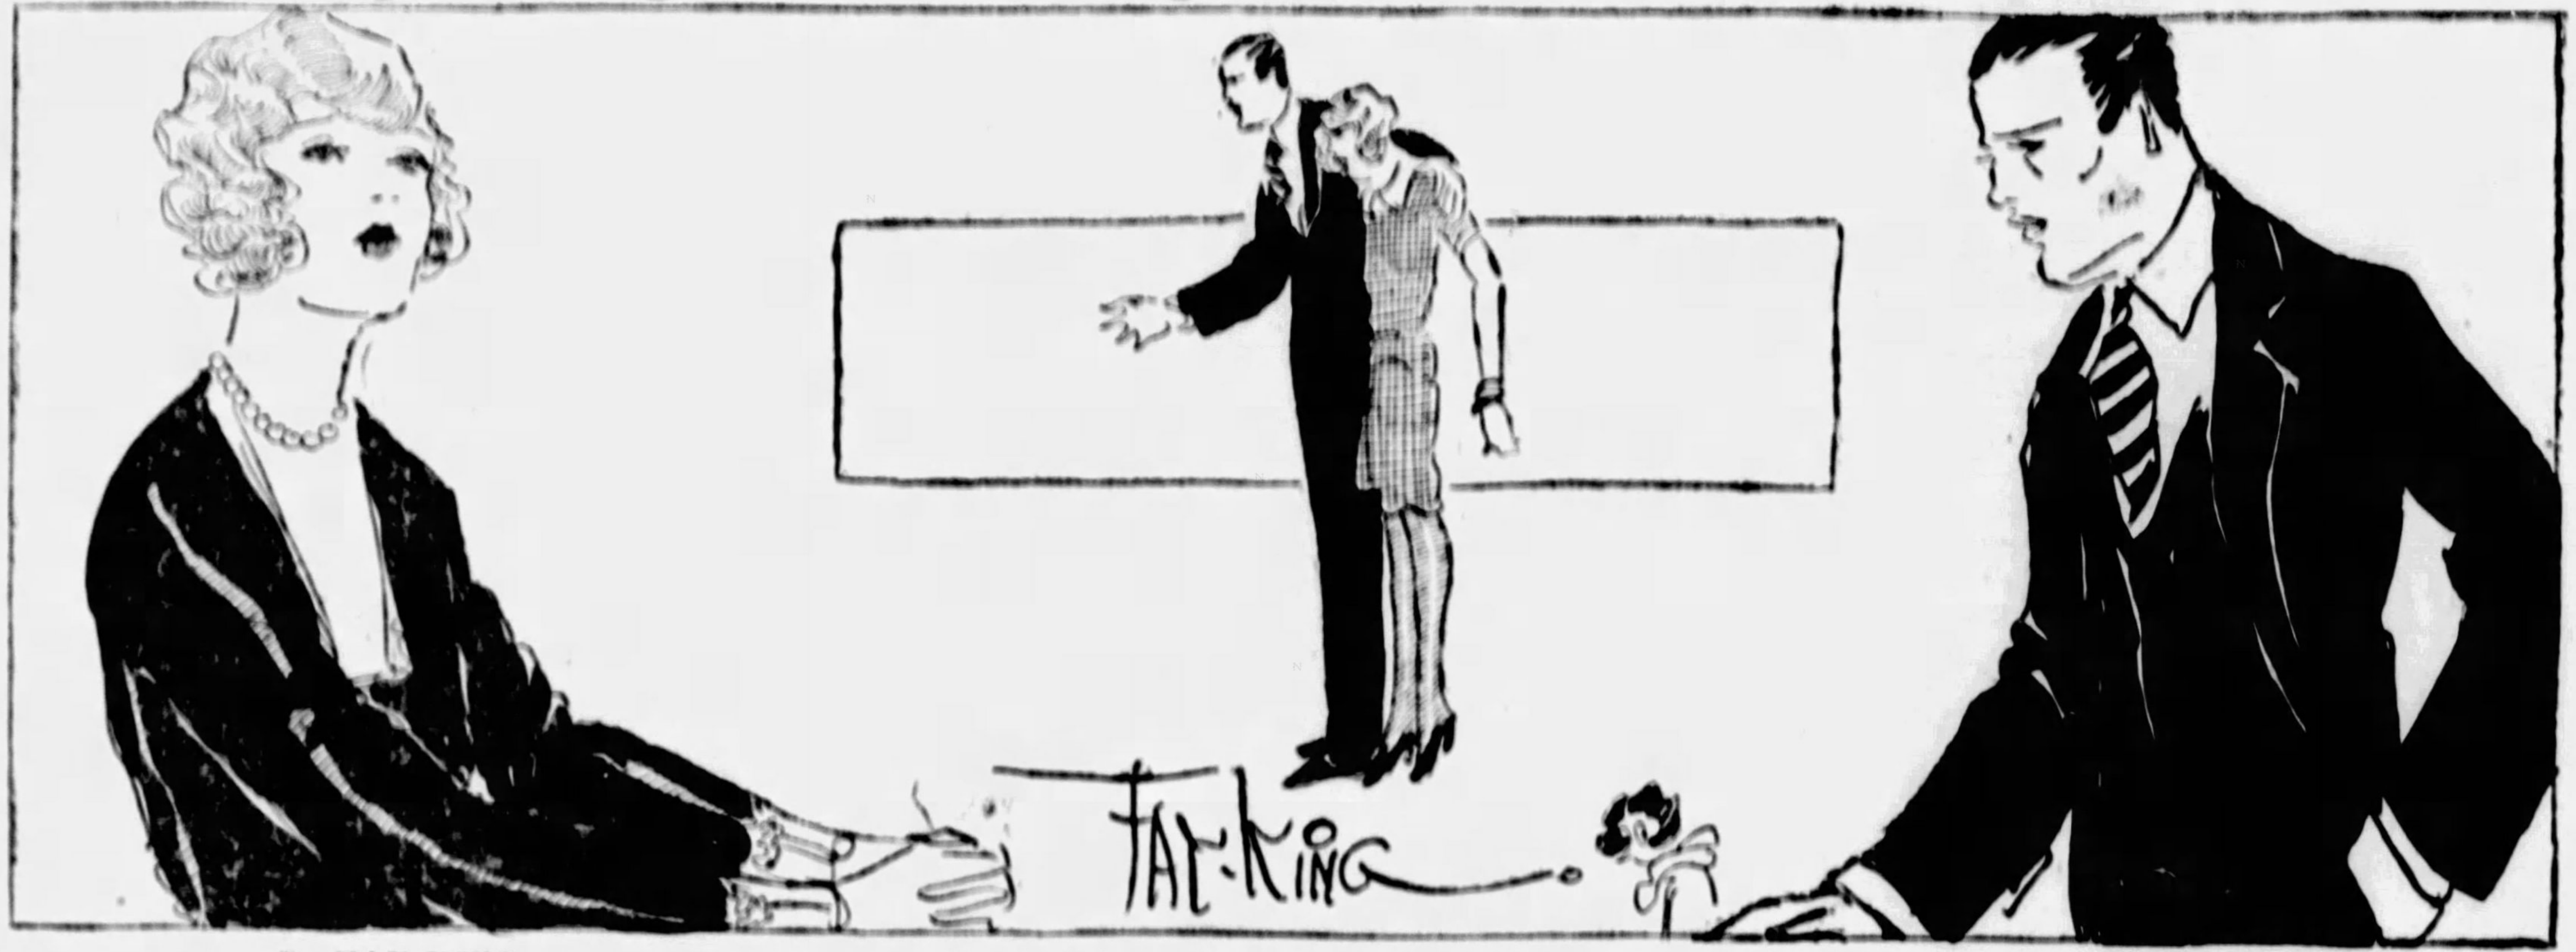
Fay King Warns Against Marital Meddlers



By FAY KING

THE trouble between a lot of young couples comes from the outside.

They meet, they fall in love, they marry and are happy—and then comes outside interference.

Never should a young couple who are happy together allow anything or anyone to become a wedge between them.

Even if relatives interfere and are truly unjust in their treatment, they should be considered as outside interference.

If his or her relatives refuse to be fair, then it takes wisdom to handle the matter.

To refuse to permit a wife or a husband to see his or her own people is, of course, a dangerous attitude.

They should be permitted to spend as much time as they see fit with their loved ones, and it should make no difference in their feelings toward each other.

But no husband and no wife should permit relatives to speak ill to them of the one they have married.

If they cannot agree upon the good points of this person, then their faults should be a subject that is taboo!

When business, social friends, trouble makers (related or not) interfere in any way, they should be handled accordingly.

It is better to hurt the feelings of an outsider than to break the heart of the one you have married.

Be worthy in every way of your mate's love and respect, and then suspicion and misunderstanding cannot come between you.

Swiss Meat Pancakes

Chop very fine enough cold meat to make a cupful. Add a few raisins, a little pepper, salt and sugar, the juice of an onion and a few drops of lemon juice. Bind with a beaten egg. Make a thin pancake batter after the wheatcakes recipe and fry rather large cakes. Put a spoonful of the meat mixture on each and fold over omelet fashion as they cook. If liked, a cream sauce may be served with these cakes.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Healthy Individuals Necessary to Healthy Community

MY old friend, Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, of Battle Creek, is one of our most prolific writers on medical subjects of popular interest. We often disagree mildly on food matters, but no one can question the good his teachings have done.

DR COPELAND

I fully indorse this statement from Dr. Kellogg's pen: "We apply science to everything but our own personal habits, the place where we should begin."

Society starts with the individual. An epidemic starts from the individual. The physical welfare of a people is after all nothing but the added health of a multitude of individuals.

The place where we must begin, if we would make any successful application of science to the improvement of mankind, is with the personal habits of each individual unit. Upon the individual rests the responsibility for his own physical welfare and, after that, for the welfare of the race.

The place to apply the world of knowledge in scientific progress is to our own needs. Charity begins at home, it is said. So does health.

Wonderful progress has been made in the field of science. We know what kinds of food are good for the human family. We know what quantities of protein, fat, starch and sugar should be eaten by each of us. We know the dangers of overeating. We realize the unwisdom of underfeeding. Yet, too frequently, alas, we fail to apply to our own lives the rules which we loudly proclaim as the correct standards of health. We apply science everywhere except to our own habits.

Perhaps you are too old to learn any new habits. Indeed, if you can no longer learn something new, you have become old. When your habits are inflexible you are fossilized.

Of course, if your habits were good ones when they became fossilized, you are lucky. But if they become fixed before they had time to be made good, you are out of luck.

You should attempt to make your daily practice in bathing, clothing, eating, drinking, breathing, exercise and sleep, conform to the scientific standards. These standards have become pretty well fixed. You can find out what they are. Then, if you are wise and far-seeing, you will govern your life accordingly.

Get wisdom, get understanding, get knowledge. Apply your scientific knowledge to your own habits. That is the place to begin. By beginning here, you will order your own life as it should be. Then you will be an example to your children. Your family will practice the rules of health. The reputation of of your household for proper living will travel abroad. In this way the practice of health will spread throughout society.

But let us begin at home to observe common sense in health matters.

Answers to Health Queries

A. R. Q.—Would adenoids cause unpleasant breath and are enlarged adenoids dangerous?

A.—They might. Why not have your doctor determine the treatment you need after a careful examination. While they are not dangerous they are apt to cause deafness, improper breathing and other conditions affecting the health in general.

For the Lovelorn -:- By ELEANOR GALE

A School Marm

DEAR MISS GALE:

I appreciate very much the splendid advice you give to the youth of today and feel sure that if it were followed by more of the young folks there would not be so many cases in the divorce courts. To me a divorce is an abominable thing. I am a firm believer in the Biblical saying, "What God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." I think true love between man and woman is a pure and holy thing, but how many young people trifle with love today. Miss Gale, I have had many male friends whom I always thought of as pals rather than sweethearts. However, about two years ago I was greatly disappointed in the one I considered my very best friend, and since that time I have had little faith in the opposite sex until last summer when I met the one and only one. He is a perfect jewel among men. Our acquaintance was necessarily very short due to the fact that, although we were introduced several years ago, we met again formally just at the close of vacation last summer and were together only twice until it was time to return to school. We do not correspond, but as I was returning to my home for the holiday season I sent him an invitation to my Christmas party. Unforeseen circumstances prevented his going home for vacation so he expressed his regrets by letter and asked me to write to him again which I did soon after returning to school here. But, he has never answered my letter. Miss Gale, I love him truly. He is the only man that I have really loved. Try as I will to forget him, for I realize that he shows no interest whatever in me, I cannot get him out of my mind. He is almost constantly before my eyes. And now my problem is this: I expect to go home again for Easter vacation and at the close of school in June. Shall I invite him to my Easter party or to my card party in June, or shall I continue trying to forget him? We have both taught school for several years and will have about the same vacation during the summer so I am looking forward to a pleasant vacation as our homes are only three miles apart.

A SCHOOL MARM.

Under the circumstances, I don't believe I should ask him again, my dear. Let him make the next move.

Antonio

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a girl in my teens and I have decided to come to you again. I have all the lovely clothes that a girl should want. I'm not conceited or anything, and I am popular with everybody, "man or woman." But there is one boy whom I love dearly and I asked him to a dance once. He went and I had a wonderful time. I thought that he did, but he hasn't been around since. I know he's busy with exams, but this was two months ago. When we got home he asked me to kiss him and I said "no." We had a heated argument and he kissed me, and I just couldn't be mad. I bawled him out, but not so that he would notice it. I couldn't help his kissing me. He was out with a friend of mine and she untactfully asked if he liked me. Well, he said that I wasn't so much. That may be so, but he's always talking that way, sort of. Don't you feel that he should come to see me? Don't tell me to forget him, because I've tried that and it won't work. I've had a lot of "puppy" loves, but this is serious—very serious. I wasted more tears on him.

"ANTONIO."

But, my dear girl, what can you do but accept his attitude? You cannot force him to like you, and he is obviously not interested. Try to put him out of your mind.

Pollye

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a new member, but hope you can give some of the wonderful and useful advice you give others. I was going with a very nice fellow, but did not at the time realize I loved him. At the same time I started going with another, whom I thought I liked, who was a boy of a different nationality. The other boy objected to this boy, not because of going with another boy, but because he was foreign. I dropped the first then the second. A few weeks later the club that I belong to gave a dance. I phoned and asked him to go. He refused, although not impolitely. I later learned it was not because we dropped off, but because he did not know the boys and girls attending the dance. Lately, he was sick for a few weeks. I sent him a shut-in-card for the sick, a cute card, though. Now, Miss Gale, I like him too much to drop. So what am I to do?

POLLYE.

Next time you see him invited him to call and if he likes you he will be eager to accept. If he doesn't care for you any more it is best for you to know it, isn't it?

The charitable give out at the door and God gives in at the window.—PROVERB.

ACCORDING to the splendid planetary aspects this should be a day of achievement, growth and fulfillment, despite certain stubborn obstacles to be surmounted. This may call for postponements, but manipulated with the good judgment conferred by Jupiter, assisted by the trine of the luminaries, much may be accomplished toward promotion and substantial gain. Employment is favored.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of advantages and growth in many directions. But be prepared for delays, obstructions can be disposed of, and with good management excellent returns are assured, with promotion and ultimate prosperity.

A child born on this day will be excellently endowed for success and advancement in life, but these may be attained through perseverence and steadfastness to the aims in view. Diligence and effort win final reward.

DO you want your child to have prettier teeth and better protection from serious tooth and gum troubles now and all through later life?

Mail the coupon then for a 10-day tube of Pepsodent, free. See what the world's leading dentists urge as science's latest attainment in tooth and gum care.

You will notice a film on your child's teeth. That's a frequent danger sign—an invitation for tooth and gum troubles. The same stubborn film that you can feel by running your tongue across your own teeth.

Mere brushing won't do. You must combat it. Ordinary dentifrices fail to fight that film successfully.

Film is the greatest enemy of tooth health. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs breed in it and imperil both teeth and gums. The acid that leads to early decay forms. Old methods fail to combat it successfully.

Now in Pepsodent two new combatants are embodied—combatants approved by highest dental authority. They curdle the film, then gently remove it. Pepsodent also firms the gums. It keeps the teeth whiter, cleaner, more sparkling. It is the modern scientific method for better tooth protection. Insist upon it. Get a tube today at your druggist's. Or mail the coupon.

HEENEY SOFT FOR TUNNEY, CORBETT

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

"What a shellacking that Australian will get!"

That's what James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion of the world, thinks of the impending titular bout between Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney, the New Zealand contender.

"I've never seen Heeney fight, but I know exactly his type," Corbett said when interviewed prior to a luncheon for newspapermen at the William Penn Hotel today. He is here for a week's engagement with Bobby Barry at Loew's Aldine Theater. "From what my friends who have seen him box have told me and from what I've read about him, I can picture him perfectly. Big and strong and healthy and able to take a lacing, just like Joe Goddard in my day. Game and strong and willing, but unable to get away from Tunney's best bet—a straight left hand with a lot of force behind it. Tunney will jab him to death, and it will be merely a question of how much Heeney can stand. Heeney will find Gene a much different proposition from the mauling heavyweights he has beaten so far, not one of whom could pop him consistently with a straight left.

"Tunney is champion because of

CONGRESS TOURNEY TO OPEN TONIGHT

THE first annual national tournament of the American Duckpin Congress opens this evening on the Haus alleys, North Side, to continue for two weeks with a record entry for a duckpin tournament in this country.

Promptly at 8 o'clock, at a signal from Hilary Wertz, tournament manager, the first balls will be sent thundering down the alleys by the keglers, a five-men squad of 10 teams inaugurating assault on the pins.

Fitting ceremonies, with Jim Malone, president of City Council, officiating, will precede the rolling.

Some of these bowlers will follow with their doubles at 9:30 and a few singles will be rolled beginning at 10:15.

Tomorrow the rolling will be resumed at 6 p. m. and continue until midnight and a full program is scheduled daily thereafter.

PRIZE PLAN POPULAR

The Congress' new plan of distributing the cash prizes, whereby the bowlers will be divided into four classes, in the order of their finish, similar to the method in vogue for many years in trapshooting, has made the event a highly popular one and will call into play many bowlers who never before have thought of participating in tournament competition.

Following is the schedule for the first night:

MARATHON COURSE HERE IS SHORT

By TOM BIRKS.

LOST—Two miles. Finder please return to Marathon committee of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U.

Last Saturday the Pittsburgh Olympic trial Marathon race was run over a course starting from the North Side and continuing through Bellevue, Sewickley and Coraopolis and return to Liberty avenue and the Boulevard of the Allies.

Herbert Speer of the Westinghouse Club, running a beautiful race in the rain, was the winner in the announced time of 2 hours 21 minutes, or 13 minutes better than the world record—and he found time besides to pick up a stone to chase a dog that bothered him.

Frank Jerry, also of the Westinghouse Club, was a mile behind Speer when the latter finished and completed the grind nine minutes behind him, and yet his time was four minutes ahead of the world record!

Could it be that Pittsburgh suddenly had uncovered the two greatest runners of all time in the Marathon game? Two unheralded stars who would find the Olympic test at Amsterdam a soft snap?

Impossible, for great runners do not come so suddenly from obscurity. This writer, keeping track of the race on the speedometer of his car, reported that it showed only 24 3-10 miles, but was told there

ADA, Okla., April 9.—(AP.)—Travis Waner, cousin of the redoubtable Paul and Lloyd Waner, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, for several days has been considering whether to accept an offer of the Johnstown (Pa.) club of the Middle Atlantic League, he revealed here today.

Waner, who returned last Saturday morning from an unsuccessful tryout of the Pirate team, found a telegram offering a berth as either an outfielder or pitcher with the Johnstown club. He immediately dispatched a telegram stating the figure at which he would accept a place on the team and expressing preference for the outer garden berth.

Tickets for the Pirates' home opener, on April 19, were placed on sale today at the Grand Theater Arcade cigar stand, Fifth avenue; A. G. Spalding & Bros., Wood street, and 6025 Penn avenue, East Liberty. The St. Louis Cardinals are to be the Bucs' opponents in the Forbes Field inaugural.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

ONE factor that has served annually to make the New York club a contender in the National League pennant race, the early stages a leastt, is the uneven manner in which the playing strength of the senior league is distributed, together with the system followed in the construction of the schedule.

John McGraw.

For a number of years the Western division of the circuit has been much the stronger as a whole, and the weakest three sisters in the entire lot have been the Eastern outfits of Boston, Brooklyn and Philadelphia.

PRIOR to the first intersectional series each year, the Eastern and the Western clubs are made to play among themselves in a score or more of contests.

It isn't hard to figure the natural outcome. The Giants clean up against the weaker Eastern club and generally gain a lead in the race, while the strong Western clubs are cutting one another's throats and holding themselves about even.

John McGraw never fails to play that point for all that it is worth and to make a determined attempt to get the spring jump on the other clubs in the race.

He always takes his team South for training before the other clubs in the hope that it will be in better condition than any rival when the race begins. He aims to make hay while the sun shines and to take advantage of the early schedule by mopping up with the Phils, the Braves and the Robins, while the Western teams are keeping one another from making any progress.

This year the Giant commander appears more eager than ever to get off to a flying start, evidently

"He is not naturally fast or clever," Corbett said. "But he has brains and knows that he can win with straight punches. There are many things he cannot do," at least three, I should say. One is to feint, another to duck a blow, and the third to hook with his left hand without giving advance notice of doing so."

'Spill Yanks' Aim Of All

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP.)—The "experts" have had their say, the hot stove league season is over and seven underdogs of the American League, fortified with new help, are ready to show them they are all wrong.

For almost to a man, these critics of the national pastime have agreed that not a club exists in the junior circuit big or powerful enough to stop Huggins and his rampant Yankees from again making a one-ring circus out of the twenty-ninth annual season which opens officially on Wednesday.

This season, more than ever, it will be the Yankees against the field. It will be the same New York team, too, as no important changes have been made in its lineup since last season when it ran away with the bunting by a margin of 19 games. Even Urban Shocker, who decided to quit the game last fall, expects to be back on the mound. While the Yankees have not demonstrated their punch in the training exhibition games, they are confident they will act differently when they cross bats with the Philadelphia Athletics Wednesday.

CUBS STRENGTHENED

Determined to end the Yankee supremacy, the rest of the clubs have been busy recruiting during the past six months. Many veterans will play side by side for the first time in their long careers, the usual crop of rookies will make their first appearances in big time and new captains and one new manager will be at the helms.

In Philadelphia, the fans are optimistic. Connie Mack has added two veterans, Tris Speaker and Bing Miller, to his outfield and along with Ty Cobb believes he has an outfield that can't be rivalied in the league. The entire team is in good shape except Al Simmons, who will be out of the game for at least the first week with a sprained ankle.

Washington will open its season tomorrow against Boston so President Coolidge can toss the first ball. The acquisition of George Sisler from St. Louis is expected to bolster the Senators. Injuries appear in the Washington camp and Manager Bucky Harris is undecided who will start.

The success or failure of Detroit is believed to rest on its pitching staff. The infield has been improved by the return of Jackie Tavener at shortstop and a heavy hitting outfield, bolstered by Harry Rice, procured from the St. Louis Browns. The Tigers open their season at home against St. Louis.

Fourth place is the ambition of the Chicago White Sox, who open their season against Cleveland here. The White Sox will have the same pitching staff, led by Ted Lyons and Tommy Thomas. The infield is believed to be strengthened by the acquisition of $125,000 Bill Cissell.

TRIBE BANKS ON UHLE

Much of Cleveland's success rests upon the showing of Pitcher George Uhle, who had a comparatively poor season last year. Roger Peckinpaugh will get his first start as manager of the Indians and much is expected of him.

The St. Louis Browns and what they will do comprise the mystery of the league. They have lost Sisler, Ken Williams and Rice, but have gained Blue, Henry Manush and Earl McNeely. The change is expected to give a punch to the club which was visibly lacking the past few seasons.

Boston gained at least one star in its winter trading. He was Ken Williams. But with the season just about to start, rumors were afloat that President Bob Quinn and Manager Bill Carrigan have more trades to pull.

A new figure is at the head of the American League this season in place of Ban Johnson. He is E. S. Barnard, former Cleveland magnate. Barnard expects a closer race than last year and a record year.

Mike Joyce, Cleveland, 262:36:49.

Louis Perrella, Albany, N. Y., 263:06:18.

Earl Dilks, of New Castle, Pa., checked in last night in 12:15:30, giving him an elapsed time from Los Angeles of 247:10:19. Dilks encountered some foot trouble, but it is not believed to be serious.

Bill Busch of Pittsburgh and two other contestants quit the race on Saturday after fighting a snow and sleet storm for several hours. Busch, weakened by earlier misfortunes, was on the verge of collapse when he was picked up.

Carmen Hill Has His Back Treated

FRANKLIN, Pa., April 9.—Carmen Hill, Pittsburgh baseball pitcher, was at Linesville yesterday, spending an hour or more with Guy Green, where he had some of the "kinks" in his back ironed out. Hill declared that he felt considerably better. He left at once for Pittsburgh, later planning to proceed to Indianapolis. Joe Harris hopes to see Green and have his shoulder fixed up when he comes East with the team.

couldn't be any mistake, as the officials had checked the course twice before the race to be certain of the distance. The regulation full Marathon distance is 26 miles 385 yards.

Yesterday, in another car, this writer again went over the course and the speedometer clocked the distance as 24 miles 528 yards.

Somebody blundered in laying out the course. Somebody was wrong by almost two miles in less than 27. No records were set. The marks of the greatest Marathoners of all time—the Hannes and Willie Kolehmainens, the Alf Schrubbs, the Johnny Hayes, the Hans Holmers—are safe.

NEW YORK, April 9.—(INS.)—Although he broke the world record for 20 miles in winning the Staten Island American Legion Marathon yesterday, Albert (Whitey) Michelson probably will not receive official credit for a new record because championship conditions were not met in the race. His time was 1:51:02, more than seven minutes under the record.

SPEAKING of SPORTS

NEW SEASONS START THIS WEEK.

Jack Zivic and Jack Katkish are not enemies, but they're going to fight anyway. Good! We all do our best fighting when we don't know what we're fighting for.

Out of deference to the opening of the baseball season, Jack Dempsey will not retire this week.

Now that it's all over, wonder what there was about the hockey season that we found to get excited over?

DONIE BUSH IS WORRIED BECAUSE HE HASN'T JOHNNY MORRISON OR EMIL YDE TO PITCH THE OPENER.

Looks as if Socko will have to hold down Ki Cuyler's seat on the Pirate bench this year.

That deathly silence is caused by the absence of James (Red) Mason, who is out in Hot Springs training Cuddy DeMarco for the latter's reinstatement in Pennsylsylvania a year from now.

Bill Mehlhorn was in town the other day to express his thanks for the buggy ride.

GO ON, DO YOUR OWN EGG-ROLLING!

All efforts to prevent it having failed, the American Duckpin Congress opens its first annual atrocity tonight on the Haus alleys.

Anyway, Bill Busch, in addition to being a game guy, had sense enough to know when to quit the Pyle Marathon. That's a rare combination.

PERHAPS HE WANTED TO GET HOME IN TIME FOR THE BASEBALL OPENER.

5,000 of his Memphis boosters home in a happy frame of mind as he won the contest in the tenth round with a homer of the Ruth species. Coming up in the extra frame with one out and the score tied at two all, Danny lost the rocket in the field behind the center field fence. The high barricade sits almost 400 feet from the home plate, so that everybody who witnessed it, including the Pirates, realized there was no taint nor tarnish to the round-tripper. The drive gave the Chicks a 3 to 2 victory.

But hitting long ones in the Southern Association is not a new trick for the sturdy kid from the Pittsburgh district. Durable Danny connected for 17 circuit drives last season, not to mention 27 triples and 27 doubles. He is the equal of many of the stars of the major circuit in some respects, his speed being something good to gaze upon.

John Miljus reeled off seven pretty shutout innings in the last clash with the Chicks. Penn Avenue John was the master of the enemy, and when he moved out in favor of Lester Bartholomew in the eighth, the young left-hander appeared to have control of the situation.

ERRORS PROVE COSTLY

The Buccos were carefully nursing a two-run lead.

A fumble by Lloyd Waner coupled with some poor control on the part of the promising southpaw helped to set the stage for the two runs that tied up the game in the ninth.

Later in the game Taylor moved into third base to take the place of Manager Doc Prothro, who was ejected for his remarks to Umpire Steamboat Johnston. Danny had hardly arrived at the infield post when he nailed a prospective two-bagger off Traynor's bat and threw to second to force Wright. This occurred in the tenth and the Buccos did not make a tally they wanted so badly. And in the same inning the versatile boy from the home district drove the ball out of the park.

Capt. Pie Traynor was back in the game, the great third sacker making two dizzy diving plays that won the applause of the throng.

New York—Moran, Reardon and Wilson.

U. S. NET STARS QUIT MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, April 9.—(INS.)—The United States Davis Cup team, with a clean sweep over the Mexican net team, left here this morning, bound for San Antonio, where they will start a series of exhibitions. Led by Capt. Bill Tilden, the Americans made their stay here a complete success by winning the final two matches of the five-match affair and eliminating the Mexicans for another year.

Johnny Hennessy, the brilliant young player from Indianapolis, and Wilmer Allison, the intercollegiate star, made the invaders' triumph complete by trouncing Robert Kinsey, captain of the Mexican team, and Alfonso Unda. As the two singles victories on Friday and the doubles triumph on Saturday had already clinched the victory for the Americans, the contests were nothing more than exhibitions, but they attracted considerable attention.

The match between Kinsey and Hennessy had been looked on as the best chance of a Mexican victory, but Kinsey was soundly beaten by the young American in three straight sets, 6-2, 6-0, 6-2.

It took Allison four sets to beat Unda, 4-6, 6-3, 8-6, 7-5.

CHILEANS VICTORS

BARCELONA, Spain, April 9.—(AP.)—Chile took the lead in the Davis cup tennis matches with Spain here by a victory in the doubles play, giving the invading contingent an advantage of two to one, honors having been divided in the singles.

Domingo Torralva and his brother, Luis, were extended yesterday to win from the Spanish opponents, Senor Falquer and Senor Mordio, the set scores being 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 7-9, 6-2.

FRANCE TOPS SPAIN

BORDEAUX, France, April 9.—(AP.) — France defeated Spain 53 to 5 at Rugby football yesterday before 15,000 spectators. This was Spain's first attempt in international rugby and the Spanish players showed great speed.

RANGERS PLEAD FOR GOALIE

MONTREAL, Quebec, April 9.—(INS.)—With Goalkeeper Lorne Chabot in the Royal Victoria Hospital as the result of a serious injury to his eye, Manager Lester Patrick of the New York Rangers will confer with directors of the Montreal Maroons today over the selection of a substitute to guard the Rangers' goal for the balance of the world's hockey series. The Maroons may agree to the substitution of Alex Connell of the Ottwa Senators, who offered his services when Chabot was hurt.

Because of criticism of their attitude on Saturday night, the directors of the Montreal club have decided to waive the National Hockey League rule regarding the substitution of injured goalkeepers. The Rangers will be allowed to borrow a goalkeeper from some other pro hockey club.

On Saturday night, when the Rangers won by 2-1, the Maroons forced the Rangers to put one of their own men on the ice, despite the fact that the New York team has no substitute goaler. For the 35 minutes of scintillating hockey which followed, Manager Lester Patrick, 44-year-old veteran, guarded the net.

URBAN SHOCKER REINSTATED

CHICAGO, April 9. — Urban Shocker, veteran pitcher of the New York Yankees, who recently announced his retirement to devote his entire attention to his radio business in St. Louis, has been reinstated at his own request by Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis. Shocker likely will rejoin the Yankees.

UMPIRES ASSIGNED FOR A. A. OPENERS

CHICAGO, April 9.—(AP.)—President Hickey, of the American Association, today assigned umpires for the opening games of the season tomorrow as follows: Toledo, McGrew and Rue; Columbus, Johnson and Joetz; Indianapolis, Powell and McCafferty; Louisville, Connolly and Shannon. The umpires met today for a thorough discussion of the rules.

Babe and Lou Show Old Form In Brooklyn

NEW YORK, April 9.—(INS.)—Twenty thousand supporters of the New York Yankees are convinced for the first time that the home run twins, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, have regained the ability to sock homers which carried them to record heights last season. They saw Babe and Buster deliver circuit clouts which beat the Brooklyn Robins yesterday, 7 to 3. Dugan, of the Yanks, and Max Carey, of the Robins, also hit for four bases.

The seres, now deadlocked, will be resumed in Brooklyn today.

Think Scrap Won't Draw

By ALLAN J. GOULD,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP.)—A week has elapsed since the momentous matching of Gene Tunney and Tom Heeney for the heavyweight championship, without much, if any, rise in the fistic blood pressure.

Actual wagering has substantiated the originally suggested odds of 3 to 1 on the champion. Honest Tom has been located in Paris, having difficulty with a dress shirt, while Gentleman Gene, more accomplished in that line, is preparing to establish training camp at Speculator, N. Y., later this month.

The ballyhoo is in a tough spot just now, with the circus in Madison Square Garden and the baseball season getting under way. It may gather headway a little later; in fact it must do so if the bout is not to be a financial flop, but at the moment most of the boys, when the big bout is mentioned, are inclined to yawn and inquire: "What of it?"

How will Tunney and Heeney draw? Nothing, it is safe to say, like the battle of the almost three millions at Chicago last September, between Gene and Jack.

But with the prospect of a $40 top, if the fight is held at either the Yankee Stadium or the Polo Grounds, it would figure to gross around $1,500,000.

The last heavyweight title fight in New York, between Dempsey and Firpo at the Polo Grounds, drew close to $1,200,000 from some 85,000 spectators with a top price of $27.50.

Most of the boys predict that with the passing of Dempsey, temporarily, if not permanently, the "gates" will strike a downward scale. Since the big fight slated for this July will be the first title affair in which the old Manassa Mauler has not been involved since 1919, it will be interesting to see what effect, if any, it has on the appeal to the customers.

Jack Sharkey and Jack Delaney, either one of whom something over a year ago was regarded as a sure shot for the championship bout, now have been matched in what the promoter is particuar to explain, is "just a fight."

This explanation seems hardly necessary to the boys after the way Sharkey and Delaney performed in the winter's jousts at Madison Square Garden.

CHICAGO, April 9.—(AP.)—The veteran Willie Hoppe, with four straight victories, is leading Champion Otto Reiselt and a field of eight others in the national three-cushion billiard tournament as it enters its second week of play today.

Hoppe took undisputed lead of the title chase last night when he defeated his opponent, Art Thurnbald of Chicago, 50 to 33, in 69 innings, while John Layton of St. Louis dropped his first game in five starts to Len Kenney, Chicago, 50 to 47 in 61 innings.

Earl Lookabaugh of Chicago defeated Charles (Cowboy) Weston of Pittsburgh, 50 to 35, last night. The match went 64 innings. Lookabaugh's high run was four and Weston's three. Reiselt's crown slipped farther away last night when he lost his second match in five starts to Gus Copulos of Detroit, 50 to 26, in 46 innings. It was one of the poorest games the champion has played. Ordinarily a two-game disadvantage is a hard handicap with players like Hoppe and Layton in the field.

The standings:

	Won.	Lost.	H.R.
Willie Hoppe, New York	4	0	6
John Layton, St. Louis	4	1	10
Allen Hall, St. Louis	3	1	8

CELTICS TAKE CUP REPLAY

By TOM BIRKS.

The two major games played in the Pittsburgh district yesterday were played under probably the most adverse conditions of the whole season. A high wind played havoc in both games staged. In one the Pittsburgh Celtics walloped the Douglas A. C. in the replayed West Penn cup tie by a 6 goals to 0 score, and at Gallatin in the American League the Pittsburgh Soccer Club defeated Mustard Hollow by a 3 to 2 count.

The crowds were small in both cases and there was a possibility that the cup tie would have been called off but for the lateness of the season.

The score tells the tale in the Celtics case. The Green and White won the toss and then won the game. The terrific wind would have beaten any team, and the few fans were faced with the spectacle of the Douglas defense trying in vain to clear the ball from the goal mouth.

Time after time the ball would be ballooned only to see it back in the Douglas goal. When half time was reached the Celtics had found the net four times. The second half saw nothing different. The first half battle had taken its toll of the Douglas stamina and nothing was left.

A good game was staged at Gallatin, but the players there also suffered from the cold and wind.

THREE OTHER TOURNEYS

While the A. D. C. tournament, so long as it lasts, will more or less monopolize the interest of the local bowlers, other tourneys will go on in the Pittsburgh district. The East Liberty Association's annual tournament will go into its second week on the Market Recreation alleys downtown, the Harry Davis Sweepstakes opens on the Club alleys, to continue for two weeks, and the Muck brothers' singles and doubles tenpin tournament will get under way on the Muck brothers' alleys, Braddock.

SPORT COMMENT—By James J. Long

feeling that therein is his only chance of making a bid for the pennant.

Lefty O'Doul

He admits that since he became manager of the Giants in 1902 he has brought four extraordinarily well conditioned teams up from the South for the opening and that this spring's team is the most satisfactorily prepared of the four.

In a sense the showing of the Giants has borne out his claims, as before Fred Marberry of Washington held them to two hits Saturday and beat them 6 to 1 the Gothamites won 13 games in a row.

DISCUSSING the prospect, McGraw is quoted:

"The spirit of the players is better than I have seen in years. O'Doul has helped greatly in defense and has added to the punch.

"Young Andy Cohen is going to surprise those who say he won't hit; defensively he will be better than Hornsby.

"My young pitchers, such as Walker, Faulkner, Cantwell and Chaplin, are doing very well.

"I look for a very tight race in the National League, and the team that wins will not have a very high percentage. I never claim pennants in advance, but you can't count out a team that can hit as hard as the Giants. They are better balanced than last year and will make anybody hustle to beat them."

ALL of which means that the Pirates may find themselves up against a tough proposition in trying to get away in front this year.

Of course, in the long run, it will be all even. The Bucs will get to play just as many games as the Giants against the weaker Eastern clubs, and the Giants will have to play the Cards, Cubs and Reds just as often as Pittsburgh, but, during the early weeks of the campaign, conditions for ground-gaining will be far more favorable for New York than for Pittsburgh.

For instance, before they start on their first Eastern trip on May 4, the Giants will play 21 games against Boston, Brooklyn and Philadelphia, 13 of of which will take place on their own home grounds. During the same period, the Bucs must play 21 games against the Cardinals, Cubs and Reds, 12 of which are scheduled to be played away from home.

Even if Boston proves much stronger than usual, therefore, it will not make matters even between the Pirates and Giants during the first three weeks. New York will have a softer program by far.

But, fortunately, pennants are not won in the first three weeks of a season.

HAVE you observed how John McGraw and the New York critics are all het up over the holdout of Vic Aldridge?

Andy Cohen.

If ever a balking player was given the silent treatment Vic is getting it now. McGraw has not mentioned him in any of his talks about the team, and the former Pirate's name has not appeared in a New York newspaper for weeks. Evidently Vic will have to make the first move if he and the club ever come to an agreement.

ONLY two more exhibition games remain to be played before the Pirates go to the post. Today the squad will be divided into Regulars and Yanigans again for a tilt in Jackson, Tenn.; tomorrow the first team will meet the Fort Wayne Central League Club in Paducah, Ky., the former home town of President Dreyfuss of the Rovers, and on Wednesday, Donie Bush will take his ballers on the field at St. Louis for the first battle in the pennant race.

YOU don't often hear of a world ring champion in any class defending his title in a small club and at prices of $1, $2 and $3, but that's what Corporal Izzy Schwartz, recognized by the New York Boxing Commission as world flyweight champion, will do tonight. He is to meet Routier Parra, South American champion, for the world honors at St. Nicholas arena in New York.

Willie Davies.

Schwartz has thrown up safeguards in event of defeat, compelling Parra to sign a contract assuring Schwartz of a return bout within 30 days if the South American wins the title tonight.

All of which indicates that the New York Commission is not breaking any records for fairness in permitting other deserving challengers—particularly Willie Davies of Charleroi, who has already beaten Schwartz twice—to be frozen out, not only of a title match with the present champion, but also of a match with the new champion, in case Schwartz is beaten.

EVIDENTLY the billiard powers intend to give balk line even a further push down the side track and boost the three-cushion game more than ever next winter.

Jake Schaefer.

To begin with, they are planning two professional leagues instead of one, the major circuit will have franchises in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Newark, and the junior league will be confined to the metropolitan district.

On top of that, it is said that Welker Cochran, now on his way to Japan, will be a member of the new league and that invitations also will be extended to Jake Schaefer, Eric Hagenlacher and Kinrey Matsuyama to turn to the angle game.

THE shipping of Pitchers Lee Mahaffey and Charley Walsh to the Columbia Club of the South Atlantic League, whittles the Pirate roster down to 29 men.

Four others are likely to go to the minors before long under options for further experience, and the finger of fate seems to be pointing at Catcher Linton, Infielder Jones and Pitchers Spencer and Peery. Spencer is apt to be a whale of a pitcher in another year.

SAMSON TIRES

Balloon – High Pressure – Stage and Truck

If the tires on your car would give you the same long, trouble-free, low-cost mileage that the stage lines secure in their fast, gruelling runs under heavy loads, you'd feel you were getting a great advantage wouldn't you?

Sometimes as you watch those massive, heavily-loaded stages speed by on the roads, you wonder how any kind of rubber could stand up under such severe usage. You surely realize that if you could get such tires for your car, they would give you thousands of miles more of service than the ordinary tire.

And if these same tires should cost you no more orginally, then, of course, you'd be saving a lot of money in tire bills.

You can secure just those same advantages with Samson tires. Years ago Samson made its reputation by building a tire that would outrun all others in this gruelling stage line service. Then, after years of study and testing and experimentation Samson engineers developed this construction in beautiful, comfortable passenger car sizes, of both balloons and high pressure cords.

The result is that today Samson is the only tire that gives a motorist stage line wear, endurance and comfort for his passenger car at a cost no higher than that of ordinary tires.

The next time you need a tire, think of this, then come in and let us prove to you by the experience of others how much you can gain by using Samsons on your car.

It is our sincere belief that it is impossible to build a better tire than Samson

Reserve Board May Again Act—Loan Inflation Worse.

By B. C. FORBES

I HEAR rumors that the Federal reserve authorities are keenly disappointed over Wall Street's reception of the warning conveyed by the recent raising of the rediscount rate from 3½ to 4 per cent, and that further action calculated to arrest the unprecedented expansion in loans may be taken this month.

BROKERS' borrowing is running beyond all previous bounds. The reserve board reports an increase last week of $153,929,000, the greatest expansion for any one week since these weekly reports began to be issued. The New York Stock Exchange reveals that borrowings by its members last month increased $317,595,155, a wholly extraordinary rise.

The expansion as compared with a year ago amounts to no less than $1,350,000,000.

The total now stands at the unprecedented figure $4,640,174,172.

THE reserve carried by the 12 Federal reserve banks has fallen fully 7½ per cent from a year ago. At New York the decrease has been still more drastic, 10 per cent.

Not only so, but we are in a period of gold exports. Unless conditions change, the likelihood is that the gold outflow will continue on a considerable scale.

Meanwhile, call money has climbed to 5½ per cent, the rate at which the market closed on Thursday, the last day the stock exchange was open. This compares with 4½ per cent a year ago. Time money also has moved up. Business is now done at 4⅞ rather than 4⅛ per cent, a rise of ¾ over year ago. Bankers' acceptances have twice been market up recently.

IT IS worth noting that curtailment of federal reserve note circulation is under way as a result loss of gold on the present export movement has approximated a third of a billion.

In view of the fact that stock speculation has become wilder than milder since the Reserve board last acted, the intimation that it is considering further action may prove well founded even though, under normal conditions, we should be entering a season of somewhat easier rather than firmer money.

THE stock market was more two-sided during its four days' business last week. There was quite a sharp drop on Monday, a brisk rally on Tuesday, a mild relapse on Wednesday and then a very vigorous spurt upwards on Thursday, carrying quotations within a fraction of their previous peak, attained on March 30. Operations were still very heavy, although not record-breaking.

The value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange last month increased—on paper—more than $2,000,000,000.

OUR reckless stock market gamblers have long since ceased to be governed by actualities. Only what occurs from moment to moment on the hectic floor of the stock exchange is taken into the reckoning by them. Were it otherwise, a rather sharp decline could be logically predicted.

The stock market's performance of late has forcefully and repeatedly recalled that "fools rush in where angels fear to tread." Recklessness has been rewarded by dazzling profits. It were folly to attempt to foretell when it will end. That it will end, is, of course, certain, and the ending is likely to be rather abrupt and decisive when it comes.

SPRING trade has not yet developed any definite new trend. Hopefulness, however, is gratified.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, April 9.—Influenced by unseasonable cold throughout the winter wheat belt, wheat values made a brisk early upturn today. Fears were expressed that damage had been done to new wheat in the more advanced sections. Opening ⅛c to ⅝c higher, the wheat market later scored additional gains. Corn, oats and provisions were likewise firmer, with corn starting ⅛c to ⅜c rise, and continuing to point upward.

At noon wheat was ¼ to ⅞c net higher and corn ⅛ to 1c up.

Supplementing the bullish effect of apprehension about undue low temperatures in winter wheat territory, reports were at hand today telling of increased abandonment of wheat acreage east of the Mississippi. A Chicago crop authority advised that from here to Champaign, Danville and Paris, Ill., fully two-thirds of the winter wheat crop will be abandoned and that the remainder is more or less thin and patchy.

Much of the further distant wheat territory west and southwest of the Mississippi that needed moisture was reported today as having been missed by recent rains. It was also contended that the season is becoming late for any marked increase of spring wheat seeding. Meanwhile world shipments for the week were shown to be smaller than for either the week previous or a year ago, and European crop prospects were unsatisfactory, likewise wheat and rye in particular.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Big Jump in Anaconda.

Anaconda Copper was the sensation of the market today, carrying through on the upward movement inaugurated early last week. The Street watched anxiously for the opening, especially as there were rumors current that powerful stock market operators were ready to give Anaconda a whirl. The first transaction in the stock indicated that big things were in the air. Shortly after the opening the tape printed "35,000 Anaconda at 71," the largest individual block of stock to change hands in one transaction since the present market excitement began more than a month ago with the run up in General Motors. Anaconda's opening at 71 was an overnight gain of 4½ points over the close of 66½ last Thursday. The initial block was heavy enough to take some of the zest out of the buying side, however, and subsequent selling orders forced the price below 69, after which it firmed up and absorbed a tremendous volume of offerings around 70. According to street rumors, the same interests responsible for Radio's recent advance are now engaged on the bull side of Anaconda and there are many in the financial community who are expecting more fireworks when the available supply of stock around 70 is absorbed. Anaconda is the "General Motors" of the metal industry, handling its own production from the mine to the dealers' shelves, through the American Brass Company, control of which was acquired about three years ago.

Trade Situation Strong.

The general run of metal issues was favorably influenced not only by the Anaconda spurt, but by the better reports from trade centers. Prices of the copper metal are holding up well and sales recently have exceeded anything noted in the trade for several years. Price is firm around 14½ with dealers expecting a level of 14¾ cents a pound shortly. Many observers feel that 14¾ will mark the high of the movement for some time, as the producers are not anxious to force the price up too rapidly and in so doing weaken the technical position of the market. A price of 14½ cents, it is said, affords reasonable profits for all companies and for this reason it is not expected that copper will go much above that figure for the next six months.

Rubber Preferred Drops.

Passing of the dividend on United States Rubber preferred brought a sharp reaction in that issue today. On the opening at 79, the stock showed a loss of 6½ points from Thursday's close. The stock met good support at that level and it was thought most offerings dislodged by the dividend omission would be taken around that price. The stock has been receiving dividends at the rate of $8 annually for many years. The dividend action served to strengthen the demand for Rubber common, which bulged up rather conspicuously in the forenoon market. Just what influence the entrance of the Du Ponts into the company had on the directors' action is not known, but the general assumption is that the Wilmington interests have large holdings of the common. In the past few years there has been considerable objection from common shareholders to the continuance of the preferred dividends, especially in view of the difficulties encountered by their company, as well as other rubber concerns. Severe depression has struck the industry on two or three occasions since the war, but the constantly expanding market for its principal production, automobile tires, has been sufficient to allow most of the companies to worry through, although profits have been meager in the extreme.

Market Ignores Loan Bulge.

The market ignored the bulge of $154,000,000 in brokers' loans for the week ended last Wednesday, just as it failed to react on the news a few days previous that loans had expanded over $380,000,000 for the month of March. Not the slightest indication was seen that traders were throwing stocks overboard on the loan news. One explanation is that compared with the total amount of securities borrowed upon the amount of loans is conservative. The fact cited is true, but the reasoning is unsound, according to one expert, who said: "No one ever worried that the banks did not have sufficient collateral protecting such loans. The danger in the record-breaking increase in such loans is that it represents widespread borrowing of money to buy stocks which in many instances have been manipulated to new high price levels."

Pipe Goes Loco.

United States Cast Iron Pipe indulged in the most sensational display of acrobatics witnessed in the current market. The stock opened late at 256, moved to 270, where it hovered for some time and then dashed to 300 on one string of sales. Prices jumped five to eight points between transactions on the upturn to 300. Pipe has always been able to outdo any stock in the market when it came to crazy movements, but the manner in which it shot up today left even the most hardened market follower breathless. The stock is scheduled for a splitup, according to talk in the Street, but the rise today had all the appearance of a demoralized short surrender.

Following the upturn to 300, the stock took a perpendicular drop to 268, after which it bobbed around erratically with the traders becoming more and more timid about taking a "flyer" on the stock on either the long or the short side.

Radio Reports Discontinued.

The New York Stock Exchange is notifying members that hereafter they will not have to submit daily reports on position in Radio Corporation stock. The daily reports on Radio were ordered by the exchange committee on securities about the time Radio began its sensational advance early last month.

Fisher's Stock Index Up.

Prof. Irvin Fisher's index places average of 50 industrial stocks at 332.0, as against 322.6 the week before and 303.4 two weeks previous. Prof. Fisher's index of commodity prices is 97.6 for the past week, against 98.1 the week preceding and 98.2 two weeks ago.

American Power Gets Montana.

The American Power and Light Company has acquired control of Montana Power Company from John D. Ryan. American Power is offering two shares of new preferred stock, series A, equal to 166, for one share of Montana Power Company. The new issue will be entitled to dividends at the rate of $2.50 a share for the remainder of 1928 and the rate will be gradually increased to $5, which rate will prevail after 1931.

Youngstown Operations.

Mill operations in the Mahoning Valley this week are at 80 per cent of capacity. Trumbull Steel is at 87 per cent, compared with 95 per cent last week. Of 53 independent open-hearth furnaces, 41 are melting; 111 of 127 sheet mills are rolling and 13 of 17 tube mills are under power. Republic Iron and Steel Company has lighted its fourth and only idle blast furnace in the Hazelton group, excluding the old virtually obsolete unit.

Utility Coal Merger.

Formal announcement of a $40,000,000 utilities merger was made today. It stamps as official the long anticipated consolidation of the coal properties of the Peabody Coal Company and subsidiaries of the Commonwealth Edison Company, Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company and the Middle West Utilities Company. Twenty-three mines in five states are involved. The Insull subsidiaries will turn over to the Peabody Company 11 mines, with approximately 52,000 acres of land, receiving as payment stock in the consolidated company. The new company will have an annual production of 20,000,000 tons.

Foundation Company, Foreign.

The Foundation Company, Foreign, reports net loss of $51,195 for 1927 after charges, against net income of $136,380 in 1926.

Consolidated Gas Financing.

According to a report in the Street, the Consolidated Gas Corporation plans to issue $200,000,000 of 4 per cent bonds, proceeds of which will be used to retire the outstanding preferred. An increase in the common stock and a higher dividend rate is also said to be in prospect. These are believed to be the first steps in the much talked of merger of Consolidated Gas with other public utility companies operating in the New York metropolitan area.

Seminole Oil Production.

The Seminole area for 24 hours ended at 7 a. m. today produced 286,186 barrels crude oil, against 284,578 barrels on Sunday, 281,359 barrels on Saturday, 278,305 barrels on Friday, and a peak of 527,400 barrels on July 30, 1927. Friday's output was the lowest since February 7, 1927, when 279,931 barrels were produced.

5½ Call Rate Attracts Funds.

Total withdrawals from the call money market today were over $35,000,000. The 5½ per cent rate attracted a fair amount of offerings. This is the high rate so far this year.

Tidal Osage Earned $3.97.

Tidal Osage Oil Company reports for 1927 net income after depreciation, depletion and federal taxes, equal after preferred dividends to $3.97 on the common shares, against $3.58 in 1926. The preferred stock has since been retired.

Ward Baking Corporation.

Net profit of Ward Baking Corporation for the first quarter, 12 weeks ended March 24, was $860,027, against $840,525 for the first quarter, 13 weeks, of the previous year.

General Baking.

Bankers' Tax Conference.

Unsatisfactory conditions in state laws affecting banks and efforts of state tax authorities to procure amendment of the federal law governing the right of the states to tax national banks has led American Bankers' Association officials to arrange for a special tax conference as a feature of the annual spring council meeting in Augusta, Ga., April 16 and 19. All phases of the tax problem will be discussed.

Fire's Dreadful Toll.

Based on the average of 615 fires a day or about one every three minutes, that have been recorded by insurance bureaus for years, H. S. Haskins, member of the National Fire Protection Association, says it is a safe estimate that about 6,000 lives will be lost in more than 225,000 fires that will occur in 1928 in city dwellings throughout the United States. About $46,000,000 in residential property is burned up annually, which means that every five years such fires pile up a sum that would be ample to provide dwellings for the population of cities like Birmingham, Ala., Omaha, Neb., and San Antonio, Tex.

STOCKS UNDER GUIDANCE OF BULLS RISE

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP.)—Disregarding a marked stiffening of call money rates, coincident with the calling of about $20,000,000 in loans, the stock market swept forward again today in response to a series of bullish demonstrations in several classes of stocks. Early gains ranged from 2 to 8 points in the active issues, with United States Cast Iron Pipe soaring 40¼ points to a new high record at 300 on a turn-over of only 1,100 shares.

Railroad shares were again heavily bought on the reported agreement of eastern executives on a four trunkline consolidation plan. New high prices for the year or longer were registered by Western Maryland common and second preferred, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Kansas City Southern, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Lackawanna, Gulf, Mobile and Northern and Delaware and Hudson, some of the gains running as high as 5½ points.

Coppers were in brisk demand on reports of improving trade conditions. Buying of Anaconda was influenced by reports that a powerful pool composed of the Durant, Cutten and Fisher interests had started operations in that issue. American Linseed and Brooklyn Edison each soared 8 points, Mullins Body climbed 6¾ and American Smelting, Radio, Coca Cola and Mexican Seaboard were among the many issues to advance 4 points or more.

Trading was again in enormous volume, the ticker falling at least 30 minutes behind the market by midday.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 9.—The cotton market opened firm today at an advance of 24 to 36 points, July selling up to 19.63c and December to 19.12c, or into new high ground for the movement on more or less general buying, stimulated by a bullish view of the official figures on boll weevil survival.

The advance met considerable realizing, and there were reactions of some 15 to 18 points after the call, but buying continued and the market was steady at the end of the first hour, active months showing net advances of about 24 to 28 points.

Over-holiday weather reports showed some rain where needed in West Texas, but there were further rains in other sections, accompanied by low temperatures, which were considred unfavorable.

The Liverpool market will reopen for business tomorrow.

Realizing attracted by the opening advance was absorbed on the early reaction and offerings became comparatively light. Reports of cold rains in other western belt sections seemed more than to offset any indicated improvement in soil conditions in West Texas. Reports pointed to an increased use of fertilizers appeared to attract little attention. While less active the market showed continued firmness with the active months selling 29 to 46 points net higher late in the forenoon. Prices were within 2 or 3 points of the best at midday.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, April 9.—The raw sugar market was unchanged early today with no sales reported and duty free in nearby positions offered at 4.52c delivered.

There was little activity in raw sugar futures and price movements were narrow and irregular. The market opened unchanged to 1 point higher and at one time active positions were 1 to 2 points net higher on covering, but the advance met increased liquidation and some selling by houses with Wall street and trade connections and reactions followed. The European markets were still closed for the Easter holidays and the late forenoon selling was attributed to the more liberal offerings in the spot market. Prices at midday were net unchanged to 1 point lower.

The refined market was unchanged at 5.95 to 6.00c for fine granulated, with a fair withdrawal demand reported.

WASHINGTON, Pa., April 9.—Tony Shankowich, 30, Canton township, was held for court Saturday charged with having been one of three men who waylaid Nick Wiekick, 40, nonunion miner.

LONE STAR AT NEW HIGH

Continued strength in the gas issues marked the opening of the week on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange. Interest centered in Lone Star, which moved up to a new high for the year, followed by a new top also on Dixie Gas and Utilities.

Lone Star's progress over the past 10 days or so has been steady but slow with the trend definitely upward. Movement of the stock indicates that investors are loath to part with their shares despite the rather disappointing action of the directors in declaring stock rights of one new share at $25 for each three shares held. There had been some hope of a stock dividend following the increase in authorized capital from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000. However, the paid in capital enlarges the cash item just that much more and at a time when the strong companies are in a position to make extraordinary good use of it. Dixie preferred, a $7 issue, is on an attractive yield basis, although not thoroughly seasoned as an investment issue, and it is thought some of the buying recently has been in anticipation of the company demonstrating an earning power well above the preferred requirements.

Dixie Gas common followed the lead of the senior issue, also making a new top, fractionally above the previous close. Houston Gulf Gas was also higher but not much stock was available around current levels.

Miscellaneous manufacturing issues were quiet but the tone in that section was steady. Glass stocks were a little unsteady but no important recessions were noted.

HOSE LEAKS AS FIRE RAGES

Sieve-like hose and lack of water pressure halted efforts of Penn township volunteer firemen to quell a blaze. Water squirted from the hose everywhere except the nozzle when they tried to battle the flames sweeping a store and dwelling of Louis Andersen in Verona boulevard, two doors from the firemen's headquarters. City firemen, summoned, found low pressure, but were able with pumps to extinguish the fire. Loss was estimated at $4,000. Water supply for the district is provided by the Pennsylvania Water Company.

HOARDED LOOT, GETS 6 YRS.

George Holtman, 23, machinist, of 7220 Kedron street, who hoarded the loot from a half-dozen robberies in his home, was sentenced to serve from three to six years in the penitentiary by Judge J. M. Swearingen today. He pleaded guilty to entering a building.

He told detectives that he never sold anything, but gave away some of his plunder. They recovered $2,500 worth of loot in his home. He was caught March 6, in the basement of David Appleman's jewelry store, 906 Homewood avenue, with $1,000 worth of plunder.

CITY SHORT ON LABORERS

Additional laborers are needed to take care of the spring work of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers, Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang informed Council today. He asked Council to express its opinion in the matter in order that no criticism of the department can be made when the appropriation for the purpose becomes exhausted later in the year. There are 300 fewer laborers in the bureau now than in 1915, Lang informed Council, adding that spring is the best period for street work.

ICE BOX LOOTER SHOT DEAD

VALLEY STEEL OUTLOOK BRIGHT

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 9.—Reflecting enlarged iron requirements and its confidence in the immediate business outlook, the Republic Iron & Steel Company today started the fourth and last blast furnace in its Haselton group. The complement originally comprised five furnaces, one of which was abandoned some time ago.

This development, in connection with the recent $2 per ton advance in price of steel tubes, of which Republic is a larger producer, reflects strengthening of the Valley steel situation. The Youngstown Steel Car Company, Niles, has received a large car repair order from the H. J. Heinz Company, Pittsburgh, and is enlarging its schedules in consequence.

Schedules of Valley steel properties are well sustained next week at 80 per cent of 127 Valley sheet mills, 111 are under power. Forty-one of 53 Independent open furnaces will melt, while 15 of 17 tube mills will be active.

Fabricators are operating at an 86 per cent average in this area, but lower schedules prevail generally with builders of mill equipment. Trumbull Steel dips during the week to 87 per cent from an operating rate of 95 per cent heretofore. Sharon Steel Hoop operates its finishing departments in full, but drops one open hearth furnace.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Dealings for all lines of fruit and vegetables at the local wholesale produce district were rather dull today; several changes were made in the quotations on vegetables and fruit. The fruit market was slack.

The poultry market was steady and the demand was good. In the face of supplies poultry was liberal. No change was made in the quotations.

The egg market was firm at the quotations listed. Cheese and butter were steady. No change was made in the quotations on these markets.

Car lot supplies were fairly liberal, a total of 610 cars being on track. Arrivals included 18 cars of apples, 1 asparagus, 11 cabbage, 2 carrots, 2 cauliflower, 11 celery, 4 grapefruit, 18 lettuce, 8 onions, 15 oranges, 3 peppers, 25 potatoes, 6 sweet potatoes, 2 peas and 2 tomatoes.

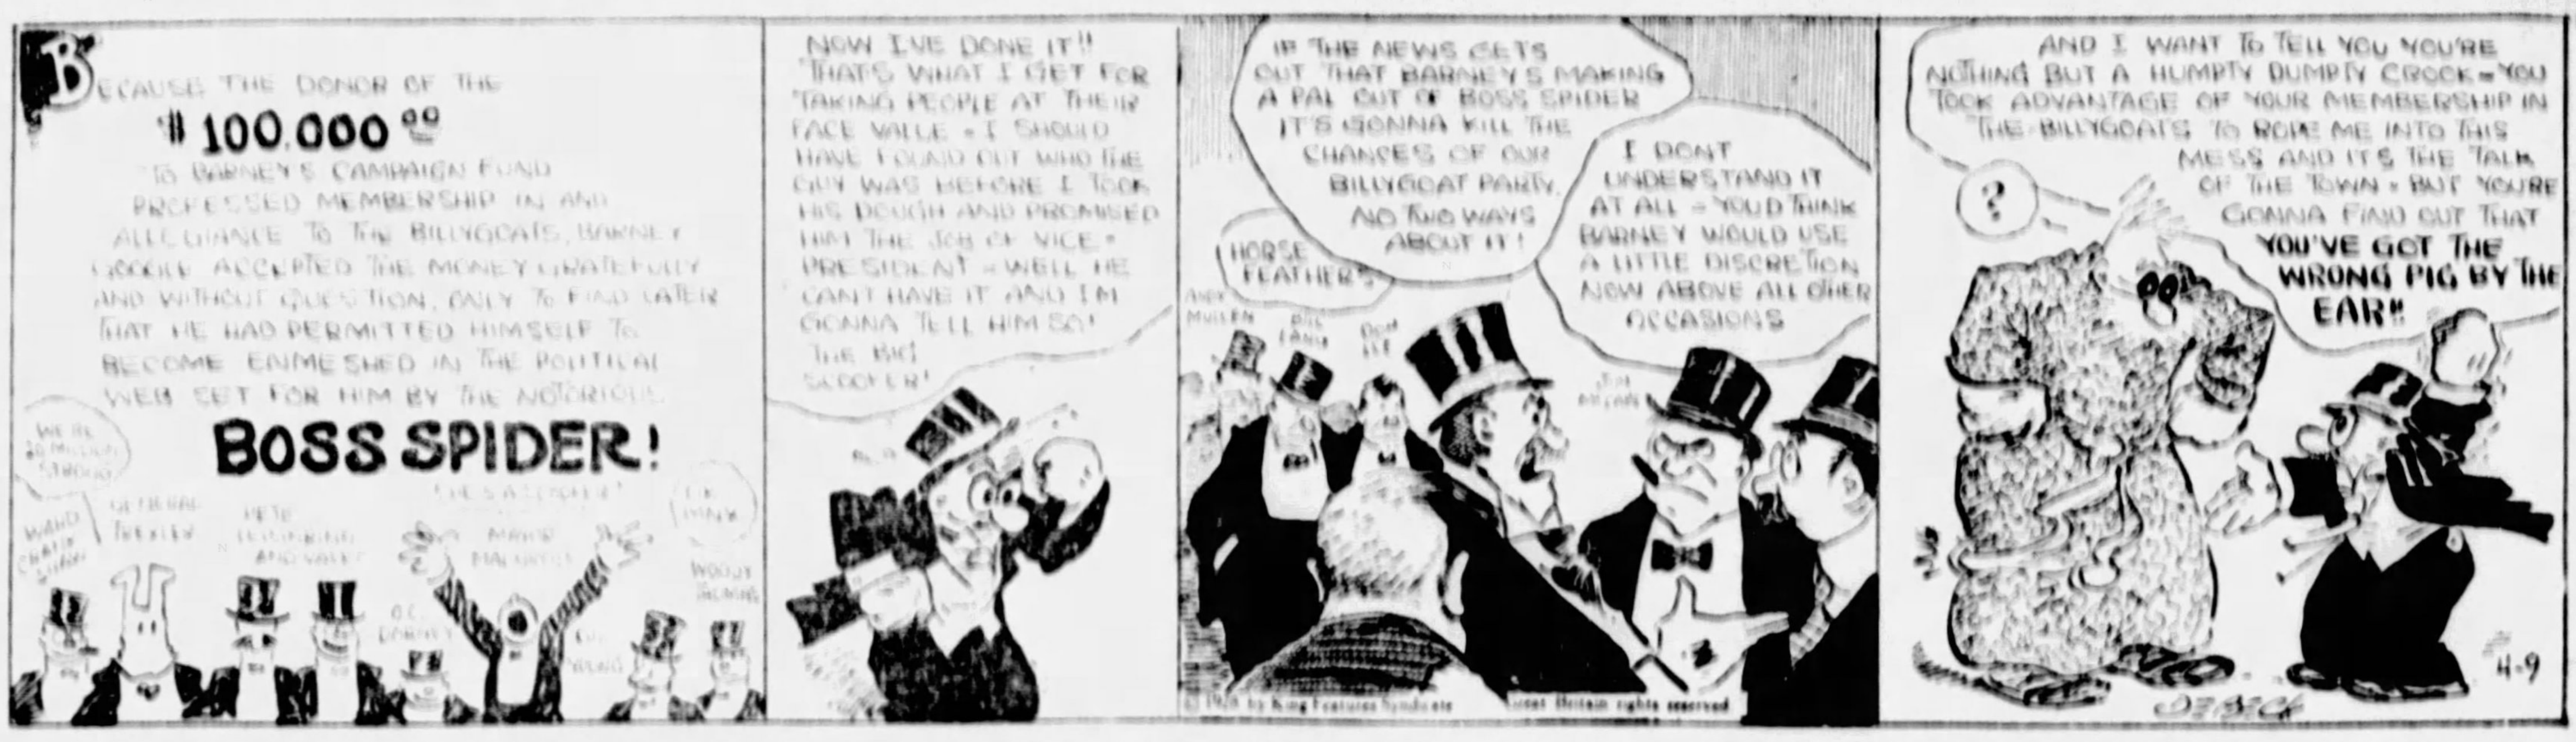
BARNEY GOOGLE AND SPARK PLUG . . . . Plain Words From Barney



Because the donor of the $100,000.00 to Barney's campaign fund professed membership in and allegiance to the Billygoats, Barney Google accepted the money gratefully and without question, only to find later that he had permitted himself to become enmeshed in the political web set for him by the notorious BOSS SPIDER!
Now I've done it!! That's what I get for taking people at their face value — I should have found out who the guy was before I took his dough and promised him the job of vice-president — well he can't have it and I'm gonna tell him so! The big scoofer!
If the news gets out that Barney's making a pal out of Boss Spider it's gonna kill the chances of our Billygoat party. No two ways about it!
Horse feathers!
I don't understand it at all — you'd think Barney would use a little discretion now above all other occasions
And I want to tell you you're nothing but a humpty dumpty crook — you took advantage of your membership in the Billygoats to rope me into this mess and it's the talk of the town — but you're gonna find out that you've got the wrong pig by the ear!!

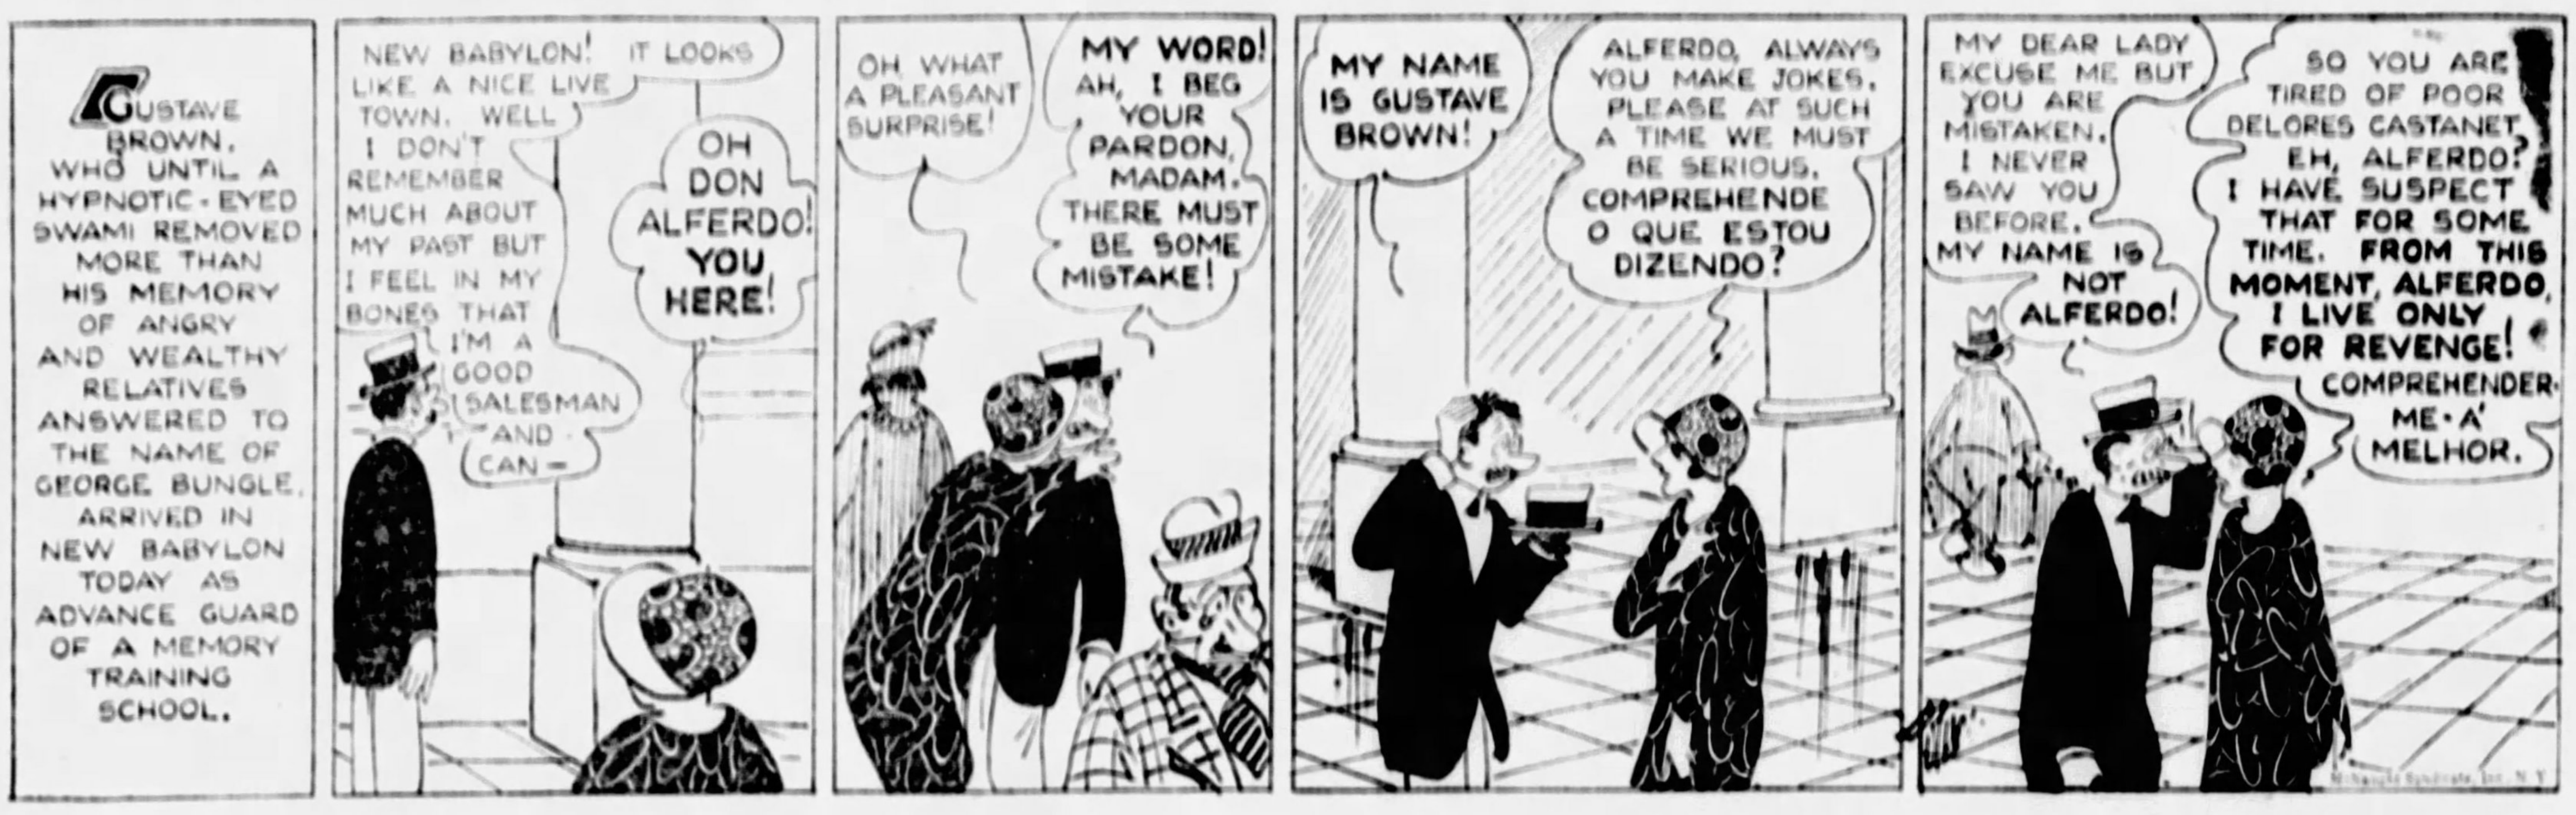
THE BUNGLE FAMILY . . . . Miss Trouble



Gustave Brown, who until a hypnotic-eyed swami removed more than his memory of angry and wealthy relatives answered to the name of George Bungle, arrived in New Babylon today as advance guard of a memory training school.
New Babylon! It looks like a nice live town. Well I don't remember much about my past but I feel in my bones that I'm a good salesman and can—
Oh Don Alferdo! You here!
Oh what a pleasant surprise!
My word! Ah, I beg your pardon, madam. There must be some mistake!
My name is Gustave Brown!
Alferdo, always you make jokes. Please at such a time we must be serious. Comprehende o que estou dizendo?
My dear lady excuse me but you are mistaken. I never saw you before. My name is not Alferdo!
So you are tired of poor Delores Castanet, eh, Alferdo? I have suspect that for some time. From this moment, Alferdo, I live only for revenge! Comprehender-me-a' melhor.

I hope we're in time!
If we're not, he'll do time!
I've just come back and there's no radium! The mine has gone where a bald man's curls go! We'll have to arrange to call the deal off right away, and give all the money back to the poor people who bought stock!
Ha-ha-ha! Pardon me while I burst a button laughing at you! Money is my best friend, and I never give a friend away! If there's no radium, the stockholders are holding something else—the bag—and Mr. Kadds will continue to hold their money! They can use their stock certificates for place cards at a hard times party!

Wockle! Wockle!
Well, all right go take a run but don't stay long, you know if this egg gets cold it wont hatch
What the heck's keeping that crazy rooster anyway?
Good gosh! He's been out half an hour — something's got to be done

Peggy was often naughty, and on one occasion, when she had been particularly trying, her mother, hoping to be specially impressive, said:

"Oh, mummy!" exclaimed the child triumphantly, "now you have given yourself away!"

Modified Baumes Law Urged for Pennsylvania

District attorneys of Pennsylvania counties, meeting in Philadelphia, adopted resolutions the purpose of which is to put "teeth" into the criminal laws of the state. One recommends to the legislature a modification of the "Baumes law" for Pennsylvania. Another would permit verdicts, except in capital cases, if 10 of 12 jurors are agreed.

The latter resolution was proposed by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, of Allegheny county, and it is intended as a blow at jury tampering. If such a provision is made part of the law it will be no longer possible for one "fixed" juror or one who merely is honestly stubborn to counteract the opinion of the remainder of the jury.

The Baumes law of New York, which provides life sentence for a person convicted of felony a fourth time, was not entirely approved for Pennsylvania. Modification, to bring increased terms for successive convictions, was thought more practical. It was believed juries would hesitate to convict a man a fourth time, knowing it would mean a life sentence.

Mr. Gardner was in favor of incorporating life imprisonment for confirmed criminals, but thought it should be discretionary with the court.

The operation of the Baumes law in New York is being watched throughout the country, and it has been generally felt by the public that it was a most severe blow to criminality. Even in modified form, as recommended by our district attorneys, it should prove effective. It appears certain the next General Assembly will give the courts what they need—a stronger arm for restraining the lawless.

School Paddling Meant One at Home in Old Days

The good old days may have been just as golden and roseate as the elderly boy with a tinge of gray about his temples claims them to have been. One thing of the present, however, he must admit would have been more to his liking had it existed then. That is the matter of licking, or whaling, or hiding, or whatever was called the chastisement he received as punishment for youthful misdeeds.

We assume that the youngsters these days have it much softer than we oldsters did because we read about a school teacher being expected to apologize because she paddled a pupil and faced an assault and battery charge because she refused. She contends she did only her duty. Perhaps the lad she paddled will have the same idea at some future time.

How different from the good old days, when a licking at school meant two. Parents, far from expecting apologies when their offspring were whaled, just piled on the agony. A whaling at school meant another at home just because a boy had been bad enough to be whipped in school. So no boy went home and told his dad he had been punished by the teacher. He knew what would be in store for him in the family woodshed. He kept silent, but there always was sister, helpful little sister, to keep the family supplied with news of schoolroom activities. When a boy's stock of bribes was exhausted, dad was pretty certain to learn about his son's misdeeds—and then the woodshed.

Instead of expecting a teacher to apologize for applying the switch, dad always thanked the instructor. Even though the youngster of today does have it pretty soft, the old timer envies him only in the spirit of his own youthful days. The spirit of the present tells him the double lickings he got were good for him. We speak from experience.

Greed, War God, Reigning

Newton D. Baker, ex-Secretary of War, says wars are economic. That is, they are fought by nations for control of markets or natural resources.

Let's look at our most recent big wars.

What made the Boer War? England wanted the gold of the Rand, and the Boer republic would not let the English prospectors in.

What was behind the Russo-Japanese War of 1904? Nothing but the collision of Japan, reaching into Manchuria from Korea, and Russia, reaching into Manchuria from Siberia.

Why the World War? German workmen, manufacturing for world markets, were taking the bread from the mouths of English workmen, who used to have almost a monopoly of manufacturing for world markets.

England loved Germany when Germany was small and weak and agricultural; England supported Germany in the Franco-Prussian War of 1870. But by 1914 it was different.

What got us into the Big War? For one thing, we had bet our billions on the Allies, and they could not be allowed to lose.

Mr. Baker's diagnosis is good. His remedy is doubtful.

He wants us to enter the League of Nations and the League's World Court.

That would assure us of a chance to send soldiers into the European war which is brewing between the new cliques of militaristic powers. One party or the other will have the League on its side, and all League members will be called into the fight.

We might join the League for that purpose.

Or we might stay at home and mind our own business, strengthening our defenses as we observe that, so far as Europe is concerned, there is no sign that human greed, the source of wars, is abating.

Where Our Autos Go

The progress of America's automobile conquest of the world is recorded in the figures of our exports during the first eleven months of 1927, made public by the government.

During that period we shipped abroad 350,590 cars, with a value of $258,000,000.

Our best market was Australia, which took 61,879 cars, worth $38,872,567. Thereafter followed Argentina, Canada, British Africa and Brazil.

Each of them was a better market than anything in Europe, where the United Kingdom and Belgium led, each taking about $11,000,000 of cars and trucks from us.

Our automobile exports represented over 11 per cent of our total production. The prosperity of many thousands of our people is dependent upon the maintenance of our foreign markets. They are directly interested in the efforts of the State Department to assure our products a fair deal in the world markets in times of peace, and they are interested in having a navy able to keep trade lanes open in time of war.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Dreams of Science

TO THE man-in-the-street there is not much difference apparent between some of the grandiose dreams that speculating science builds upon the puzzles that spring like Jacks-in-the-box out of its laboratory experiments, and the frank inventions in pseudo-science offered by the H. G. Wells school of fiction to a multitude of hungry minds.

The dictum of modern science is: "Generalize, and again generalize, and yet once more generalize."

Forgetful of the words of Bacon, a man who was wise not for his own generation alone, there are some who appear to think the whole universe can be enchained in a "law" formulated in a little man-made laboratory!

It is a good thing to recall Bacon's famous "Idols" of the mind, particularly the "Idola Tribus," or "Idols of the tribe," i. e., of our race in general. Conspicuous among these he puts "the proneness to suppose in nature greater order and regularity than there actually is; the tendency to support a preconceived opinion by affirmative instances, neglecting all negative or opposed cases; and the tendency to generalize from few observations, or to give reality to mere abstraction, figments of the mind."

He warns against the errors that result from weakness of the senses, "which affords scope for mere conjecture;" from "the restless desire of the mind to penetrate to the ultimate principles of things, and from the belief that man is the measure of the universe, whereas in truth the world is received by us in a distorted and erroneous manner" (owing to the weakness of our physical senses).

Now I should, I hope, be the last person in the world to throw any obstacle in the way of the spread of scientific knowledge, or of well-founded scientific speculation, which often opens the only road to knowledge; but, on the other hand, I believe that all educated men and women should prepare themselves to enter the grand and swiftly expanding World's Exposition which modern science keeps continuously open, in some better attitude of mind than that of the traditional "country bumpkin" going to the circus in a mood to accept with open-eyed wonder but with complete credulity anything that "Barnum says."

Science is not helped but harmed by some of its present-day touts. It is becoming to neither its dignity nor its truth that it should be constantly held up as the sole regulator of human intelligence, the universal cure-all for every human ill, whether physical, mental or moral, the one answer of every possible question, the only refuge for the human soul, or, still worse, the infallible negator of the soul's existence.

• • •

Upon some minds an imperfect knowledge of what science really does know seems to have a shrivelling effect, and they shrink until nothing but purely material conception can find room in them, and until the idea of God itself is dwarfed into a machine-made mental idol, across whose tool-turned forehead is stamped the lampoon: "SCIENCE."

True science is the second glory of man, the first being his moral sense.

Reading the Papers

UNITED STATES Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes told Emil Ludwig that he never reads the newspapers.

Once Arthur Balfour, British Foreign Minister, claimed he never read the papers. He said they seldom had anything important, and, if they did, the first man he met on the street told him about it.

Balfour could dispense with reading the papers himself because his assistants condensed for him their news and all other news streaming into the widespread information net of the British Foreign Office.

Justice Holmes is, by his office, obligated to keep his mind uninfluenced by current prejudices and opinions on the great matters he must decide.

The average man cannot keep himself equipped for life, business or pleasure without reading the newspapers.

Mind Your Own Business

IF YOU happen to be left in a room, with a desk, while you are waiting in a home or in an office which is not your own, what is your procedure?

There are some persons so well brought up, or so naturally well-bred, that to ask such a question would be superfluous.

In fact the attitude you take toward another's private matters shows your breeding, or the lack of it.

But there are a lot of people with curiosity.

It matters not to them, that it does not concern them, in the least.

In fact the less it concerns them, the more they want to know.

Perhaps this has never been brought to your notice.

With harmless motives and the best of intentions, it might happen that you might take a peep at the letters or private papers in a desk, near at hand, in an environment outside of your own.

It might result in loss of friends or position, and you might not be able to find out why you were completely dropped.

No explanation on your part could right an impertinence of this sort.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

A Song of Youth

THE queen looked up with a little sigh
From a case where great jewels lay,
And her mirror showed to her searching eye
Lined cheeks and dark locks grown gray.

Deep lights in her rubies and emeralds shone
And fair was the pearls' soft sheen,
Rare gems that matched with a royal throne,
But mocked at an ageing queen.

The scrub girl sang as she rinsed her rags
And hung them out to dry,
While youth in her cheeks flung its flaming flags
And gleamed in her sparkling eye.

Oh, pity the queen who at last has found
That Time is no monarch's thrall,
And be glad that the scub girl knows joy profound
In her youth that can conquer all.

Be wary and slow to give your confidence. This is the backbone of the mind's strength—Epicharmus.

Tales that are Told

An Oversight

JONES started the day badly by smashing his favorite corn against the bedpost. At breakfast he was like a roaring lion. The porridge was atrocious—the eggs, phew!—the toast resembled a cinder—and so on.

But still his wife retained her serenity.

At last Jones was ready to go. He slammed his hat on his head, and, without the usual morning kiss, left the house; but he only got about ten yards when his wife called him back.

"Well, what is it?" he barked, thinking she was expecting to be kissed.

"Darling," she cooed, "you have forgotten something?"

"Oh, have I? Well, what is it?"

"Darling," and her smile would have thawed an Eskimo, "you have forgotten to slam the door."

The Last Laugh

A WEALTHY tourist was passing through a dilapidated village in the Balkans with a dilapidated youth for a guide, when he saw an old beggar woman sitting at a church door.

"Ivan," said the tourist, "for every copper you give that old woman, I'll give her silver.'

"Right," replied the guide, and emptied his pockets. The old woman received seventeen coins, and the tourist gave her seventeen pieces of silver.

"Now, which of us is the bigger fool?" he asked.

"You," said the guide.

"No," declared the other; "you gave her all you had."

"But," said the guide, "she's my mother."

The Culprit

THERE is a church in the North of Scotland which, during the shooting season, is largely attended by sportsmen and ghillies. The latter occasionally bring their collies with them.

One Sunday the usual minister was on holiday and his substitute was discovered to possess a droning, monotonous voice. This caused one of the collies to begin whining uneasily.

The angry clergyman said: "Kindly take that dog away at once."

The owner of the dog, a brawny, independent Highlander, rose and, glowering at the man in the pulpit, remarked: "It was you that began it."—London Tit-Bits.

Boiled Down

"I SUPPOSE your wiife's name was Elizabeth?

"So it iis."

"Then why do you call her Peggy?"

"Short for Pegasa."

"What has that to do with it?"

"Why, Pegasa is feminine for Pegasus."

"Well?"

"Well, Pegasus is an immortal steed."

"What is that?"

"Not so loud! She's in the next room. You see, an immortal steed is an everlasting nag—so there you are."

The Awful Truth

TWO faces were close together, the man's grim, tense; the other face was small and white, with two slender hands pressed tightly against it. It was those frail hands that riveted the man's horrified gaze.

"Heavens!" he said, still staring; and in his voice was hopeless, stark tragedy, for that other face was the face of his watch, and those little hands told him that he had missed the last train home.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 9.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Aroused by a merry telegram from Courtney Ryley Cooper in the Colorado high country, and with a friend to his safety deposit box and watched him clip coupons from a sheaf of bonds, a grim reminder to those who waste.

And an old lady there adorned herself with jewels and put them away again and an attendant said she came once a week to indulge in this vanity. So to lunch at a place where waiters were costumed as clowns and amusing, too, but the food very poor.

In the evening to a dinner for some advertising gentlemen from Detroit and Dr. George Dorsey, Ray Long, Brig. Gen. Reilly and Irvin Cobb made brave speeches and I, too, made an effort, my voice trailing off into a squeak. And Sneeze, the black boy, sang "Room 202" gaily. So late to bed.

New York's amazing curiosity is expressed at the opening of a conspicuous theatrical performance. The curious gather at dusk and go without dinner to stand around the entrance for a peep at the sprinkling of celebrities who may arrive. Nobodies are targets for a little kidding from the sidelines as they go through the police-made lane. Joe Doakes may be greeted with the cry: "Here comes Jack Barrymore!" and taunted into blazing blushes. When Mayor Walker comes up with an official clatter, he is certain to receive a round cheer, that is if they haven't all gone by that time.

Mons. Ziegfeld, who has always been ahead of the pack with extravagant curtains, surpasses previous efforts this year. In one of his extravaganzas there is a curtain of ermine tails, and when its furred magnificence is revealed the collective feminene gasp is something that must warm even the icy heart of the little father of the Follies.

It is always good fun watching Ziegfeld when he is dragged from the wings at a premiere to take a bow. He, of course, favors the idea or he would not be waiting on the sidelines, but when he faces lights and welcoming roar he suffers from the most delightful bit of stage fright seen hereabouts. And he is not acting. A queer impresario—this Ziegfeld. He can sulk over a nickel and smile over a burst of extravagance that plunges his confreres into despair. Daily he nurses a new and imaginary grievance. One moment he hates actors and the next he will sign them at unheard of salaries with a friendly pat on the back. He swims up from sleep every morning at 6 o'clock to grab a telephone and whine his woe. And begin what is for his executives a hectic day. He will spend hundreds of dollars on trivial telegrams and waste minutes pondering if a 4-cent letter can be dispatched for 2 cents. He seems to vacillate all over the Rialto, yet no producer is so sure of himself. He's a wise theatrical bird.

In a Fifth avenue window are displayed silk pajamas at $48 for five and six-year-old boys which must be a shock to those whose boyhood was spent slumbering in the attic in flour sacks with cut-out arm holes.

He was one of those boys with his hat rim swept down all way around, a capsule mustache, cab driver's overcoat and a great curved cane with a yellow handle—streaking it up the avenue with the grace of a gazelle. At Fiftieth street he darted across the street ahead of traffic in a series of Isadore Duncan skips and the booming voice of an uncouth bus topper called out: "If you don't make it safely, dearie, I'll scream."

* * *

I wonder if others have noted the gaiety of the bus tops. There is a camaraderie among those perched upstairs not found many places in the city. If they ever start razzing you, take the tip of one who knows—sneak swiftly up a side street and hide in a doorway. They can make you redden to the roots of your hair, if any.

The Greatest Business

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The greatest business in the world anywhere and at any time is the business of educating and training the young.

Just as the household centers about its children in all its hopes and plans, just as for them the father works and the mother sacrifices, so in the case of a nation everything should turn about the improvement of its young people.

On them and on their fitness rests the future safety of the nation more than on any plans or schemes or institutions which their fathers may set in motion.

Always the character of a people has more to do with the success of a nation than the institutions or customs it may have, or the defense which it may possess.

A recent press statement was to the effect that 250 American cities having over 30,000 population each, spent on public schools in 1926, $607,000,000, or one-third of their income. That sounds like a good deal of money, but it is only $6.30 per capita in big cities.

What we spend money for is the best sign of what we desire most.

A Britisher the other day gave £500,000 to his government to be applied toward the English debt. This was an unparalleled act of patriotism. Men will give their lives for their country, while few are willing to give money.

So we orate and write and grow enthusiastic over our public schools. But the test of our appreciation of them comes best by spending money on them.

The school teacher should be better paid and he should rank higher in the community than he does.

The superintendent of public schools should be the best paid official in the city and the most carefully selected. And he needs to be a person of more outstanding ability than the mayor.

The school buildings should be, and in some places are, the most remarkable pieces of architecture in a community.

Every city should have plenty of playgrounds for children.

To the credit of America it is that it has more juvenile publications and printed matter, especially for the reading of children, than has any other country.

Every man and woman ought to be in some way connected with assisting the younger generation to make good.

School teaching or the training of the young is far and away the most important business of the country.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Rough Prizes

WALT WHITMAN was a strong, strange man, a laborer-poet who lived from 1819 to 1892. He was a great thing for America. He crashed into the Victorian era and smashed its gilded literary whatnots to smithereens. At a time when other poets were simpering and swooning through scented sentimentalities, Walt Whitman peeled off his shirt, spat on his hands and tackled reality. For a while he was anathema to all proper people, but now we realize what a great debt we owe him for his courage and honesty.

Other writers said that life was pretty. Walt Whitman said it wasn't. Other writers advised men to seek safety and comfort, romance, happiness and prosperity. Walt Whitman saw that these things are traps in which a man's soul may rot. He wrote a great, brave poem called "Song of the Open Road" which was a challenge to the men of his day—and of all days. Here are some lines from it:

"Allons! we must not stop here,
"However sweet these laid-up stores, however convenient this dwelling we cannot remain here,
"However shelter'd this port and however calm these waters we must not anchor here,
"However welcome the hospitality that surrounds us we are permitted to receive it but a little while.
"Listen! I will be honest with you,
"I do not offer the old smooth prizes, but offer rough new prizes,
"These are the days that must happen to you:
"You shall not heap up what is call'd riches,
"You shall not scatter with lavish hand all that you earn achieve,
"You but arrive at the city to which you were destin'd, you hardly settle yourself to satisfaction before you are call'd by an irresistible call to depart,
"You shall be treated to the ironical smiles and mockings of those who remain behind you,
"What beckonings of love you receive you shall only answer with passionate kisses of parting,
"You shall not allow the hold of those who spread their reach'd hands toward you."

"Rough prizes"—Walt Whitman knew well that the rewards of great living are not smooth or pretty. He knew that wisdom and strength are only to be won by hardship and sacrifice and bitter loneliness. BUT HE ALSO KNEW THAT THOSE ROUGH REWARDS ARE WORTH ALL THEY COST, FOR THERE IS NO TREASURE ON EARTH AS PRECIOUS AS LIBERTY AND TRUTH.

The open road awaits you as it awaited Walt Whitman. It awaits you in splendid books which you may read—in honest work which you may do—in noble rebellions which you may make against laziness and cowardice and greed and pretense and pettiness in your own life. The open road awaits you, but the going is very hard.
